U. S. Fliers Complete Air Girdle of Globe

SEATTLE LANDING IS FORMAL FINISH OF WORLD CIRCUIT

Last Hop of Long Journey From Eugene, Ore., Is Made in 3 1-2 Hours With One Stop.

MOTHER AND SISTER MEET LIEUT. ARNOLD

General Morton Praises World Fliers of All Nations While Acting as Nation's Mouthpiece.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Seattle, September 28.—The American army around-the-world fliers completed the circuit of the globe this afternoon, landing at Sand Point field at 1:36 p. m. Pacific time.

Lieutenant Smith was the first to land. He was followed by Lieutenant Wade, then Lieutenant Nelson. The commander landed at 1:36, the others at 1:37:50 and 1:38:35.

Flying conditions were ideal as the aviators made their last lap. The weather here was warm, approaching sultriness.

Sirens shrieked as the planes flew over the city. Thousands of voices roared a welcome at the field. Among the first to greet the fliers was Mayor Martin, first commander.

Kisses for Arnold.

Lieutenant Arnold was hugged and kissed by his mother, Mrs. Cora Arnold, and his sister, Mrs. Frances Cole, of Spokane, Wash., when he alighted.

The fliers left Eugene, Ore., at 10:02 a. m., on their last leg.

They landed at Vancouver Barracks, Wash., a few minutes after leaving Portland to make adjustment to Lieutenant Wade's engine, hopping off from there at 11:57 a. m.

The airplanes on landing taxied in a large circle to the reviewing stand in the Chicago at the left, Boston 11 in the center and the New Orleans at the right. A blare of music from a band greeted them as the machines halted in line. Ropes were strung around the famous machines and the reception committee gathered to greet the fliers. Lieutenant Smith stepped from the cockpit of his machine and made a short address to the assembled committee. The crowd that gathered around the roped-off airplanes was so great that the reception at the landing field was curtailed to merely a shaking of hands of the fliers and expressions from the reception committee of "Glad you are here."

Each Given Big Bouquet.

Each of the fliers received at the field a large bouquet of dahlias which he took with him to a private luncheon aboard a yacht.

A huge welcome sign 150 feet long spelled in letters 20 feet high greetings of the aviators as they circled over Sand Point. As the planes flew over Seattle whistles and automobile horns rang out in shrilling greetings. On the field hundreds of automobiles and cheers from the thousands of spectators contributed to the noisy return.

Among the vessels in the lake awaiting them were the tugboats.

Tate Confesses He Helped Slay Joe Herrington

Illicit Love Led to Poisoning of Herrington by Wife, Now Mrs. Tate.

Marion, Ill., September 28.—Joseph Herrington, a quiet, mild-mannered and hard-working coal miner, stood in the way of the romance between his wife, Ruby, and Robert Tate, a fellow-miner, so the lovers poisoned him with arsenic, Tate declared in a confession made Sunday to Sheriff Galligan.

"We had talked over putting Joe out of the way for a long time," Tate said. "He was a friend of mine and I hated to do it, but I had to have her and she had to have me. I bought arsenic and after talking to Ruby I decided I would put it in his lunch while we were working. I poisoned his lunch one day and he just got sick. "Ruby finished up the job. She put poison in his lunch and later, when he didn't die, I put poison in some fruit and told her to put it in butter-milk. He was sick then and this dose finished him up."

Wife Urged Confession.

Tate's confession came after he had been grilled almost continuously Saturday night and most of Sunday. Early Sunday he had shown indications of breaking down and had admitted that he knew in advance that Mrs. Herrington intended to poison her husband so that she might marry him. But he insisted that he had no connection with Herrington's death other than this.

Tate made his confession in the presence of his wife, who joined Sheriff Galligan in pleading with him to make a clean breast of the whole affair.

"I stuck by you and did what you wanted me to do. You won't desert me now, will you?" Mrs. Tate asked her husband.

"Now Tate, we know Herrington died from poison. His stomach shows it," the sheriff said. "Why don't you tell us the truth? Maybe you and Ruby didn't know what you were doing."

Wavered and Broke Down.

Tate wavered a few minutes and then said:

"It's true, but I don't know how you found it out. I started it and she finished the job. She wanted to be married and Herrington was in the way."

Stenographic notes had been taken of Tate's statements and later a formal confession was prepared, which he read and signed.

Within three weeks after Herrington died Tate married his widow and they moved to West Frankfort to live.

Elders and Tots Begin Guessing In Elephant Game

Correct Weight of Pachyderm Will Net Winners $2,510.

The Constitution's elephant race—with thirty cash awards totaling $2,510—is officially on.

This new classic of the arithmetic turf got under way soon after the Sunday Constitution was delivered to thousands of Georgia and southern homes early yesterday morning, and indications are that the ranks of the racers will be swelled daily.

The problem of the new elephant game introduced by The Constitution is to compute the weight of the pachyderm, whose figure is composed of a large number of failures.

In a full page advertisement appearing in this issue of The Constitution may be found full details of the elephant game, together with a big picture of the elephant himself.

First prize in the game is fixed at $1,000 in cash; second prize at $700, and 28 additional prizes of big sums are offered winners in the event—the entire amount involved totaling $2,510.

There's no trick in the contest, a simple process of addition being the only arithmetical knowledge required. Anybody can start in this game without disadvantage, and the elephant race is one that will make an instant appeal to every member of the family from the tot just starting to school to the heads of the fireside circle.

"If you have not already begun adding 'em up" to reach your conclusion as regards the weight of the elephant, don't fail to turn to the full page advertisement in this issue of The Constitution and start to work at once. Full particulars of the contest will be found therein.

G. O. P. WILL FLING ITS 'GRAND ARMY' AGAINST AL SMITH

Secretary Hughes To Lead Array of Speakers Who Hope To Carry New York for Coolidge.

DEMOCRATIC FORCES CONFIDENT OF RESULT

Nomination of Roosevelt by Republicans Vitalizes Oil-Scandal Issue for Orators.

BY RODNEY F. DUTCHER.

New York, September 28.—In that pregnant hour when the election extras come to a definite agreement on the outcome of the nation's vote November 4, it is more than likely that the presidential candidates will find their respective fates to have been largely determined in the somewhat titanic battle about to be waged in the state of New York.

It is here that the three leading candidates will engage in a death struggle for a large, juicy and perhaps determining chunk of 45 electoral votes.

It is here that the democrats have persuaded their champion vote-getter, Al Smith, to remain in politics for practically the sole purpose of saving those 45 votes for John W. Davis.

It is here that the republicans have invoked the magic name of Theodore Roosevelt, carried by his son, to save the state for President Coolidge.

Battle of Big Guns.

It is here that both parties will employ their oratorical big berths, their bitterest invectives and their most frenzied efforts, and—

It is here that the issue of "tea-

DELEGATES ARRIVE FOR TRADE MEET

Chilean Representatives Will Arrive Tonight. Head of Woman's Division Expected Tuesday.

The first foreign delegates to the Pan American Commercial congress, which opens in Atlanta Wednesday, will arrive tonight, according to word received today by Dr. Clarence J. Owens, director of the convention.

Chilean delegates, according to a telegram from Washington, arrived in that city Sunday morning and will arrive in Atlanta tonight.

The delegation will be the first to arrive from Latin-American nations, but several are expected Tuesday, and representatives of practically all of the 20 member republics of the Pan-American union are expected in the city in time for the opening session at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Official representatives of more than 25 states, commissioned by the respective governors, are expected early this week, and word has been received that the Missouri delegation, headed by Barton Hoffman, is making the trip in an automobile caravan.

The delegates from that state are expected here Tuesday, and the number will be augmented en route by representatives of other states.

Miss Temple To Be Here.

Miss Mary Boyce Temple, of Knoxville, president general of the woman's auxiliary of the Southern Commercial congress, will arrive Tuesday morning and will plunge immediately into the task of whipping the auxiliary's part of the program into shape. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Florence Jackson Stoddard, founder of the International Association of Arts and Letters, who has been prominent in work of the woman's division of the organization.

Women of Chamber Invited.

In addition to the woman's auxiliary, the woman's division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has been extended an invitation by Dr. Owens. The division has been requested to appoint an official delegation of 25 members, who will attend sessions regularly.

Miss Susie Wallies, head of the division, has urged members to be present, stating, "It will be highly interesting and beneficial to our members, and to be able to participate will be another step forward for the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce."

Candidate Gump in Atlanta His Caboose Special Is Here For A Day Is Given Crown of Triumph

BY JOHN H. HEWLETT.

"As Atlanta goes, so goes the country." These ringing words, coming at the conclusion of the short address Sunday afternoon at Brookwood station by Andy Gump, presidential candidate, were greeted with tumultuous applause by hundreds of Atlantans who braved the chilly mist.

The arrival of the self-styled champion of the common hordes, the intrepid mouthpiece of the masses, the unshackled candidate for the presidency, is graphically pictured on another page of this morning's Constitution. Tracey Mathewson, veteran camera artist, was among the first to greet the formidable leader. Andy set his trusty grapple to work with the excellent result shown elsewhere.

The damp mist and fog hovering around the caboose of the famous nephew of Uncle Jim failed to dampen his ardor. He began his brief speech almost before the wheels of the train had come to a stop. Applause reverberated through the valley about the station as Candidate Gump assured his hearers that his dear mother's family were native Atlantans. The eagerness of the crowd and the surge to and fro around the station finally broke through the cordon of police and hundreds pressed forward to glimpse or press the hand of the 100 per cent candidate.

Given Triumphal Entry.

A group of admirers, sensing the danger of injury by the pressing mob, hoisted him from their shoulders and bore him from his caboose to a waiting automobile.

Later Mrs. Gump, or Min, as she is much better known, who had remained in the background, joined her husband at a downtown hotel.

The reception was unprecedented in the long list of ovations given in leading cities of the nation for the creation of Sidney Smith, and when Mr. Gump was rescued from the admiring throng and safely perched on the shoulders of his friends, tears

DAVIS AND DAWES SPRING SURPRISE WITH NEW TACTICS

Davis Defends La Follette From Bolsheviki Charge While Dawes Pads His Hammer.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, September 28.—Davis and Dawes have changed their tactics toward La Follette within the past week, causing considerable speculation in political circles.

One of the most surprising developments was the treatment of the La Follette candidacy by Davis in his Wilmington speech, where he accused the republicans of trying to make a bogey man out of the Wisconsin senator and ventured the opinion that La Follette is not trying to lead the country to Moscow, but rather toward London, where "the parliament is supreme over the courts."

Davis took pains to insist, as he had previously done, that he does not favor La Follette's proposal to check the power of the supreme court, but he does not regard the proposal as revolutionary or destructive of democratic government.

Rumors of Dickers.

In view of the possibility that the election may go into congress, where La Follette holds the balance of power, this treatment of the independent candidacy has aroused considerable attention here. There have been many rumors of jockeying between progressives and democrats regarding the possibility of having to decide the election in congress. Some of the La Follette people, including Senator Wheeler himself, have said that if a choice had to be made in the senate, they will vote for Bryan rather than Dawes.

Another significant change of tactics.

Hi-Jackers Play High Jinks Along Canadian Frontier

RUM AND ALIENS LURE MODERN PIRATE HORDE

Ottawa, September 28.—Not since the days when bearded, tattooed pirates fought, looted and died in their rakish craft on the Spanish main has there been such an era of lawlessness as now pervades certain sections of the Canadian border, due to the enactment of the prohibition and immigration laws by the United States.

Murder, loot, extortion and sudden death—all these elements that made life interesting for the merry rover under the jolly Roger are there.

Hi-jacking of rum-runners has become common all around the corners of the United States for a long time, but the super-hi-jackers on the northern frontier have evolved a new means of revenue—hi-jacking the alien.

Aliens Offer Rich Loot.

Alien smuggling, given greatly increased impetus by the recent enactment of the United States quota immigration law, is providing the modern pirate with a harvest equal to that which he gleams from the rum-runners. Canadian officials have been told that as many as 300 aliens are entering the United States weekly by the "underground" route.

WOMAN MAY DIE, TEN OTHERS HURT IN AUTO MISHAPS

Mrs. L. S. Whitney, of 340 Dill avenue, is near death in St. Joseph's infirmary as the result of injuries received Sunday morning when run down by an automobile at the intersection of Lee street and Campbellton road. Ten others were hurt during the day in a series of accidents caused by wet streets and careless driving, police and hospital records show.

Mrs. Whitney was en route from her home to attend church services, it is said, when an automobile driven by E. A. Baehl, of Leavenworth, Kansas, collided with a machine driven by R. J. Holland, of College Park, the impact throwing Baehl's car against Mrs. Whitney, knocking her heavily to the pavement.

The injured woman was standing under the street car shed awaiting an inbound car to attend services at a downtown church, when the two machines, one on Lee street and the other on Campbellton road, collided, the Baehl machine striking her. Mrs. Whitney was severely bruised about the face and body and physicians said that she may be injured internally.

Drivers Are Held.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE DEFENDS HUSBAND IN STUMP SPEECH

Declares Mate Is Bitterly Opposed Because His Reforms Possess Real Teeth.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Mountain Lake Park, Md., September 28.—Standing on hostile ground, in the midst of a rock-ribbed republican section in the hills of western Maryland, Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of the independent candidate, opened a new era in national politics, making the first campaign speech that a wife has ever made in behalf of a husband's candidacy for the highest office in the land.

In her opening speech here Sunday afternoon, which is expected to be followed later by others elsewhere in an active stump tour, Mrs. La Follette answered the charges of "radical" and "wild-eyed revolutionist" that have been used against her husband and outlined in plain words the issues for which her husband stands and what they mean to the women of the country.

Meeting Place Refused.

Mrs. La Follette made her first campaign speech for her husband's candidacy under difficulties. An effort had been made to prevent her from using the chalet amphitheater here, owned by the national board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, on the technical ground that it could not be used on Sunday for political speeches.

The local committee went ahead with its plans, however, and there was no effort Sunday to stop the meeting. In addition it was a dreary, rainy day with a chilly breeze sweep-

WET STREETS BLAMED FOR MANY ACCIDENTS

Two Drivers Held Without Bond Pending Outcome of Mrs. L. S. Whitney, Injured in Collision.

Seated in a chair by the stove in engine house No. 12, at DeKalb and Moreland avenues, City Fireman J. P. Griswell, 29, of 19 Floral avenue, Sunday afternoon sent a bullet into his left chest in an attempt to end his life.

Surgeons at the Grady hospital where he was taken X-rayed the wound and stated that the bullet entered directly over the heart but struck a rib and was deflected, lodging under the left shoulder. No bones were fractured and no arteries pierced which would make the wound dangerous, surgeons announced.

Griswell's attempt to end his life followed a quarrel he is said to have had with his wife during the day. He is reported to have remarked to several as he reported for duty at 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon that he was going to kill himself.

Griswell, who has been connected with the fire department for about 3 years, is one of the most efficient firemen in the department, in the opinion of Captain Charles Benson, in charge of No. 12 company, who was nonplussed when news reached him of Griswell's suicide attempt.

Assigned to night duty, he answered roll call at 6 o'clock, and had just taken his seat in a chair near Lieutenant C. D. Reed when, without warning, he quietly drew a pistol from his pocket and, placing the muzzle directly over his heart, pulled the trigger.

Officer H. H. King, attached to Grady hospital, had the wounded fireman on the operating table in the hospital within 15 minutes after the call was received.

Swallows Poison For Fourth Time.

For the fourth time in as many weeks, according to nurses, Mrs. E. A. Odum, 29, of 29 East Alexander street, Sunday afternoon was admitted to the Grady hospital for treatment for poison which she is said to have taken while in a despondent mood.

Mrs. Odum refused to discuss the matter or tell what she had taken or why. However, upon her arrival at the hospital she denied to doctors that she had taken any poison, although she is said to have told friends in the apartment that she had taken bichloride of mercury.

After the stomach pump was used in the clinic, Mrs. Odum was admitted to the ward for further observation.

Walsh To Oppose Move To Promote Admiral Robison

Senator Promises New Air-ing to Teapot Dome Scandal in Wire.

Washington, September 28.—The democratic national committee announced today that Senator Walsh, of Montana, who prosecuted the oil leasing investigation, would resist any attempt to promote rear Admiral Robison, chief of the bureau of engineering of the navy department, to the rank of rear admiral on the permanent list.

Such an attempt, it was added, also would be followed by further investigation of his part in the leasing of the naval oil reserves. His present rank on the permanent list is that of captain, and he holds only temporary rank as rear admiral because of his assignment with the bureau.

A statement by Senator Walsh, issued by the committee, said: "It will be interesting to prosecute an inquiry into how it happened that he among all the eligibles in the navy, schooled by Doherty and imbued with exactly the same ideals about them as those entertained by that gentleman should have been selected to head the bureau of engineering to which was entrusted the care of the reserves."

"Those interested will be reminded that he knew and approved of the transactions, notwithstanding the secrecy that attended them and the lack of competitive bidding, that he conceived the plan of circumventing congress by stretching the power granted so as to permit paying for the tanks with oil—two barrels for one barrel of storage—and that he inaugurated the system without any knowledge as to whether what would be left would be adequate to the needs of the navy in any kind of an emergency."

"If President Coolidge, after reading the record, rewards Robison, as it is said he will, there will be further food for thought."

Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church and one of the foremost members of the Episcopal clergy in the south, concluded his last Sunday in Atlanta in connection with the local work in his church by conducting three services. He will leave Atlanta Tuesday to become a member of the faculty of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. On his departure he becomes rector emeritus of St. Luke's parish by unanimous vote of the vestry of the church.

The services during Sunday were in celebration of early communion at 8 o'clock; holy communion and sermon at 11 o'clock and the sermon Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. The church was thronged with members and visitors at all services.

Dr. Wilmer came to Atlanta as rector of St. Luke's church in September 1900, when the church was located at the corner of Houston and North Pryor streets. The present handsome edifice, now located on Peachtree and Alexander streets, has been erected during his work here.

Dr. Wilmer, who is chairman of the white committee on inter-racial relations in Atlanta, was presented Sunday afternoon with a huge loving cup at a meeting at Big Bethel A. M. E. church. The cup was presented by Rev. E. P. Johnson, pastor of Reed Street Baptist church, in behalf of 60,000 Atlanta negroes, he said.

The cup is a massive and expensive design and bore the inscription "Presented by the colored people of Atlanta to Dr. C. B. Wilmer, a pioneer in inter-racial good will. He practices truth and his neighbor is as mankind."

Tributes were paid Dr. Wilmer by Jesse O. Thomas, secretary of the Urban league; Dr. John Hope, president of Morehouse college, and Dr. W. D. Alexander, of Morris Brown college. Resolutions expressing appreciation of Dr. Wilmer's service in inter-racial matters and church cooperation were unanimously adopted by the crowd.

In Dr. Wilmer's brief reply was a review of the history of the inter-racial movement in Atlanta.

Opens Way to Wars.

Senor Fernandez, a Brazilian jurist, combated the Japanese amendment. It had the effect, he said, of putting the sign of approval on the most inadmissible, as well as the most cruel, wars of all—those growing out of a conflict over a state's sovereign rights.

He admitted that a certain injustice might be meted out to a state against whom an arbitral sentence was made, but thought the remedy was to be found either in the codification of international law, which is about to be begun at Geneva, or in revising article 23 of the covenant, which declares that members of the league of nations will endeavor to obtain and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor for men and women and children, both in their own countries and in all countries to which their commercial and industrial relations extend.

But the Japanese amendment, he believed, would be destructive and dangerous.

Japs Gain Support.

A look of surprise came upon the faces of many of the delegates when both M. Politis, of Greece, and M. Rolin, of Belgium, arose and defended the Japanese proposal.

While the conflict over the Japanese reservations to the protocol still was unsettled early this afternoon, a member of the Japanese delegation made the following statement to the correspondent of The Associated Press:

"We are determined in our opposition to the protocol as it now stands, because it puts Japan in a most unfavorable position. Japanese public opinion will never permit the government to subscribe to a document which closes the door on us and virtually makes diplomatic negotiations impossible on subjects which the world court decides are solely within the national jurisdiction of a state with which we have differences.

Object to Being Called Aggressor.

"What we particularly object to is that Japan would be proclaimed immediately an aggressor state if she declined to abide by an arbitral decision which declared that the dispute had arisen out of a question domestic in nature. It is not only the question of immigration with the United States. When you consider how the Japanese are mistreated in South Africa—we are treated very well in the United States as a nation—for in South Africa the Japanese are even forbidden accommodation in hotels.

"The immigration problem with the United States is serious and has aroused the Japanese public, but there is a vast variety of other problems affecting the Japanese, which other nations might plead concern solely their national sovereignty and hence are not subject to international arbitration. The Spanish-American war sprang out of the administration of Cuba. Tomorrow Japanese may be murdered by police in China and other countries, and the plea of state sovereignty can immediately be put forward as a ransom for submission to arbitration.

"Would Keep Covenant Intact.

"Instead of accepting the protocol, which aggravates the stipulations of paragraph 8, article 15, of the league covenant, we would much rather stick by the covenant without changing it, even if it does not completely satisfy us."

The speaker was referring to the covenant clause which provides that if a dispute is found by the league council to arise out of a matter which is the domestic jurisdiction of a state, the council shall make no recommendation as to its settlement. He continued:

"That permits diplomatic negotiations; the protocol prevents them. Yet diplomatic negotiations should be encouraged, not hindered. We merely want the council of the league to continue its efforts at mediation, even when the world court rules that a conflict is the outgrowth of a domestic question."

The Japanese spokesman concluded by saying that Japan is embarrassed because the United States would probably be a signatory to the protocol, which the protocol would have no power as regards the United States.

While leading delegates hurriedly were holding a private conference in an attempt to save the situation, M. Politis, former Greek foreign minister, was reading the reports summing up the significance of the protocol at a plenary session of the arbitration commission. Alluding to the Japanese difficulty, he explained the machinery of arbitration when one party to a dispute claims that the conflict arose from a question purely domestic in nature. The arbitrators take the advice of the world court, he said, for the question involved is a legal one, on which a judicial opinion must be obtained.

Unlike other opinions requested of the court, explained M. Politis, the opinion of the court in such cases is compulsory, because the court recognizes that the question in dispute falls entirely within the domestic jurisdiction of the state concerned. The arbitrators simply have to register this conclusion in their ward. If, despite this finding, any state goes to war, then it becomes an aggressor.

Close Breaks in Wall.

M. Politis described the covenant of the league as creating a wall of protection around the peace of the world, but as failing to close the circle sufficiently so as to leave no possible opening for war.

"It reduced the number of possible wars," he continued, "but did not condemn them all. Consequently, there remained numerous fissures which constituted a grave menace to peace. The new protocol system closes the covenant circles; it prohibits all wars of aggression. This result is obtained by strengthening the methods of pacific procedure laid down in the covenant and by extending them to all international disputes without exception by making arbitration compulsory.

M. Politis pointed out that the protocol provides for three categories of compulsory arbitration.

The first is when compulsory arbitration is asked for by one of the parties, which fact binds the other party to accept it. The second is when the council reaches a unanimous decision after arbitration has been refused by both parties. Such decision is final and irrevocable.

Final Alternative.

The third is when the council fails to attain unanimity. In this case the dispute automatically goes to the arbitrators chosen by the council, whose decision is binding. If a state refused to abide by the decision, it would be subject to pacific pressure by the council of the league and then to sanctions of an economic and financial order. But if a state actually takes up arms, thereby becoming an aggressor against the combined sanctions, the several sanctions provided for in article 16 come into play.

M. Politis revealed what a hard time the commission had in finding rules for the determination of actual aggression. The violation of an agreement was easy to verify, but he contended that to determine whether a nation has resorted to force is not easy, for when one country attacks another the latter necessarily defends itself, and when hostilities are in-progress on both sides the question arises as to which party began them. This difficulty was met by deciding that when the council was not unanimous it might by a two-thirds majority enjoin an armistice upon the belligerents and declare that the party which rejected the armistice or violated it would be proclaimed an aggressor and subject to sanctions.

HI-JACKERS PLAYING HIGH JINKS ON BORDER

The holdup. Little open resistance can be made by the victims there because of the fear of arrest. Canadian laws do not forbid either traffic. In many quarters it is believed a protest by the United States would cause Canadian authorities to remedy the situation easily and with little delay.

Death Rewards Baiters.

Various sums per person are charged by the hi-jacker for each person he permits to disembark. The price depends on the alien's chance of getting by after he crosses the border. Passage is worth between $20 and $200 per man. Orientals pay the latter sum.

But sometimes aliens and their escorts refuse to "come across." Evidence of this was indicated last week when, after a gun fight had been reported on the Detroit river, authorities found the bodies of two foreigners floating in the stream. Their pockets had been looted of everything except a few papers.

In the St. Lawrence river, two French-Canadians were drowned in a fight between alien smugglers and hi-jackers. When guns flashed, the men had leaped from their boats in an attempt to escape, but the current swept them down.

The latter episode now is being investigated, but under a great handicap, because it first must be determined whether the men died in Canadian or United States water. After the question of jurisdiction is established, the work of searching for criminals can proceed.

Mounted Policemen Slain.

At least a score of aliens have mysteriously lost their lives in illegally attempting to enter the United States from the north, it is reliably reported. Those engaged in the "trade" are not the only ones to suffer. Recently the body of a member of the Royal Northwest mounted police who had been working against international dope and alien smugglers was found floating in the Ottawa river. Investigation failed to identify his slayer, but the "mounties" today firmly believe he met death at the hands of alien smugglers.

Along the Quebec and Maine border, the Niagara frontier and along the St. Lawrence, Detroit and St. Clair rivers, the smuggling continues and will, so long as men are willing to pay and take chances.

rolled down his honest face. He was overcome.

Beset by Reporters.

Reporters immediately beset him and, true to his announced intention, he talked freely. A representative of The Constitution was allowed to accompany Andy and his retinue to his suite.

He talked at great length on his candidacy, but requested that little be said in the news columns. He intends to spring "one surprise after another" in the course of his campaigning, he said.

Andy was travel-worn and a bit haggard and his hands and muscles twitched noticeably as he reclined on a divan. When friends expressed anxiety as to his condition, the stubborn, defiant Gump asserted itself.

"What?" he cried. "You wish me to rest and close my doors to the noble people of this great city—to shut out the warmth of the great stronghold of the old south—to refuse admittance to the cousin of my dear mother, not to attend the reception today at famous Five Points? Ah! I would rather shed my last drop of blood than to miss the official welcome of Mayor Walter A. Sims—than to grasp the gigantic hand of E. L. Jeff, this city's gallant chief of police—to embrace every member of the force and to rub elbows with the merchants, lawyers, laborers, firemen, newspapermen and to kiss every mother's baby under these fair skies."

Challenges Death.

"My condition," he continued, "may be serious, but let that be as it may. If it is my destiny to die, it is my privilege, let me hope, to be buried in this metropolis. And the reporter noticed his eye snap expectantly.

Mr. Gump (although he cautioned the reporter not to intimate and refer to him as "Andy") intends to spend a busy day here, he declared. Although somewhat disappointed at the reports of the crowd, he expects to attend his meeting at their breakfast tables this morning. He predicted a unanimous vote in his favor at the polls in November.

He was invited to every one to dine with him and his on the day of his inauguration.

M'GREGOR'S LIFE HANGS BY THREAD

Warrenton, Ga., September 28.—No change has been noted in the condition of Major C. E. McGregor, pension commissioner of Georgia, in the past 24 hours, but he now lies on his back, his life hanging by a thread, doctors said.

Souweha Melon Body Will Open Meeting At Moultrie Tuesday

Moultrie, Ga., September 28.—About 1,000 members of the Souweha Melon association are expected to attend the mid-year meeting which is to be held here Tuesday.

The directors of the association will meet on the same date and interest centers chiefly in the annual report of Secretary J. J. Parrish, who will detail the results of the past season's operations.

The melon growers will be extended a welcome to Moultrie by a representative of the local chamber of commerce. The meeting will be in the courthouse.

The 1924 melon season, due chiefly to over-production and the fact that shipments from Georgia, Florida, South Carolina and Texas moved to market at the same time, was not a profitable one, but members of the association are said to take an optimistic view of the outlook next year.

held by police without bond pending the outcome of the injuries to Mrs. Whitney.

The identity of five persons of the other four injured during the day had not been learned by police late Sunday night.

Mrs. H. L. Smith, of 95 Elmira street, was struck down at "Little Five Points," in Innes Park, as she alighted from an outbound street car. The auto which hit Mrs. Smith slowed down, the driver looking back and then continuing on his course, according to information given by Patrolmen J. D. Dorsett by witnesses.

Mrs. Smith was placed in a passing automobile and carried home, where she is under the care of a physician. Besides being badly bruised and cut about the limbs, Mrs. Smith's left arm was dislocated at the shoulder, it is reported.

Arrest Is Expected.

The license number of the car was obtained and furnished to police and the arrest of the driver is only a matter of a few hours, according to the police.

A man, his wife and three small children were treated for slight cuts and bruises at Grady hospital which they said were received in an automobile collision during the early part of Sunday afternoon. Their injuries were not of sufficient importance to cause doctors to take their names, and police are without any report of the accident.

The other two injured were negro boys, Matthias and John Davis, brothers, who were struck by a motor truck driven by a negro man, Charles Davis, at Forsyth and Hunter streets.

According to the police report John Davis was pulling a small wagon in the street in which his brother, Matthias, was riding. Both boys were knocked a distance of several feet but not seriously hurt, it is reported.

Five others, whose names are unknown to police, were treated at various hospitals during the day for minor injuries which they said were received in automobile mishaps.

U. S. FLIERS FINISH GIRDLE OF GLOBE

ing the fliers' arrival was the Canadian destroyer Patricia. The officers aboard had been delegated by dominion officials to extend officially the greetings of the Canadian government.

Nine airplanes from Sand Point under the command of Major D. C. Emmons, commander of Crissy field, San Francisco, left the field shortly before the fliers were expected to escort them to the field they saw last April 6.

The world circlers were accompanied on their flight from Eugene by Lieutenants J. A. Brockhurst and George W. Goddard, who made a photographic record of the flight across the country, and Lieutenant Burdette Wright and Sergeant J. F. Kennedy.

GENERAL MORTON EXTENDS U. S. PRAISE.

Seattle, Wash., September 28.—Praise to each of the American army aviators who participated in the successful around-the-world flight, to "the generous and unflinching assistance" of the United States navy and to Major Frederick L. Martin, former commander of the mechanics, Staff Sergeant Alva L. Harvey, who were forced to abandon the trip when their airplane was wrecked in Alaska, was given at a reception in Volunteer park here today by Major General Charles G. Morton, commander of the ninth corps area.

General Morton acted as official representative of President Coolidge, Secretary of War Weeks and Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service.

Marks Epoch in History.

The conquering flight is the first time in history that the hitherto uncharted air route over the Pacific ocean; by the perilous traversing of typhoon-swept areas of Japan and China; the pushing of the planes through the deadly mists of the Andes; the wintering heat in Indo-China and India; and after the comparative safety of Europe, the unflinching answering of the formidable challenge of the ice-encrusted and ice-locked stretches of the north Atlantic—these are the achievements of a world flight, the nucleus of a story that will fire the imagination of old and young alike as long as appreciation of human accomplishment shall endure," General Morton declared.

"The flight clinches beyond further doubt the argument for strengthening our national air force. It also proves the urgency for commercial aviation, a branch related to our country's air defense. One of the most valuable features of our pioneer globe flight is that it has drawn the family of nations a little closer together."

Praises All Birdmen.

"All honor is due also to the brave contemporaneous attempts made by the British, Portuguese, Italian and Argentine fliers to wing their way around the earth. Our hats are off to Major A. Stuart McLaren, the sailor, who attempted a Dutch effort in March of this year, but who was forced out of the world's most thrilling modern drama in a crash on one of the islands of the north Pacific."

"It has been demonstrated on this flight how gloriously men may win and how splendidly they may lose. The fine sportsmanship with which Major Martin and Sergeant Harvey accepted the misfortune that meant abandoning of their most cherished ambition; the grit and concentrated nerve with which they overcame the difficulties subsequent to the crash; the unflinching acceptance of the best traditions of the best traditions of our service."

In conclusion General Morton asserted that the encircling of the globe has been "an acid test of a brilliant proof of expert flying and mechanical ability; it has meant the complete subordination of the individual to his task; the unflinching acceptance of terrific hazards; the overcoming of what appeared to be almost insurmountable difficulties. I can but reiterate our gratitude to you—our gratitude for bringing to America the birthplace of aviation, the gift that it has rightfully inherited—world air prestige."

PLAN FULL REWARD FOR AIR CONQUERORS.

Washington, September 28.—Arrival of the world fliers today at Seattle, officially completing the first air circuit of the earth, will be followed by the preparation of a report by them, out of which valuable data will be extracted for the benefit of all government agencies having to do with aeronautics.

In this way the experiences and lessons learned by the world fliers will be made available not only to their brother officers of the army, navy, post office and other departments engaged in phases of aerial navigation both military and commercial.

While a full measure of enthusiasm at the achievement of Lieutenant Smith and his colleagues of the flight squadron was manifest today through the rank and file of officials here, the agencies interested in the scientific results of the flight said the real value of the feat would be found, not in its historical reckoning, but in the scientific achievement of the aviators.

Much importance was attached also to the results expected by these scientists and technicians from the studies and examinations of the three machines when they are dismantled at San Diego for purposes of research.

To Suffer No Loss.

Major General Patrick, of the army air service, declared the occasion arising from the successful termination of the flight merited the highest commendation of the aviators personally, but to the navy, post office and other departments engaged in phases of aerial navigation both military and commercial.

The war secretary has declared his intention to have the fliers repaid from existing air service funds for any personal financial loss incurred during the flight, if provisions of the appropriations law will permit, and not to ask congress for a special authorization. Should the law intervene and congress fail to comply with the secretary's request in this connection, Mr. Weeks has said he would take care of the situation even then, digging down into his own pockets if that was necessary.

Pershing Urges Promotion.

General Pershing, in his last address to student officers at the army war college a few days before he retired from active service, took occasion to criticize the army promotion system for failure to provide a way for elevating officers in the lower grades through a selection-on-merit plan. The world fliers at that time had just returned to the American continent and still were several thousand miles from their starting point, but it is known that General Pershing was inspired to speak of the promotion law with them in his mind, deserving of higher rank but prevented from receiving it under the existing selection-on-merit plan which is workable only in cases of colonels and general officers drawing to fill vacancies in the two highest grades in army peace-time service.

While General Pershing has not yet let it be known whether he, acting now as a civilian and not handicapped by limitations which go with the uniform in army service, will lead a movement to bring about promotion by selection in the lower grades, it is probable that the ideas he has expressed will be made known to congress and once that is done he will advocate such a law.

To Embellish Records.

Meanwhile, steps have been taken to incorporate as a part of the personal service records of the fliers the letters and citations they have received as a result of the world flight. First among these is the message delivered to them in the name of President Coolidge when the landing was made at Indian Harbor, Labrador, marking the return to the American continent from Europe. Others of similar nature include the cable from King George, of Great Britain, letters from Secretary Weeks and other cabinet officers, as well as many other commendations.

"BLESSED WITH PERFECT HEALTH BY INTERNAL BATHING"

Miss Emma F. de Meritt of 515 19th St., Sacramento, Cal., writes to the Tyrrhene Hygienic Institute of New York:

"Since using the J. B. L. Cascade I do not feel as if I would have attempted before. I do not get tired or worn out and that I have a heavy feeling has entirely disappeared from my head."

"The J. B. L. Cascade" cleanses the lower intestine its entire length and keeps it always free of poisonous matter.

Thousands testify that Constipation, Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, Bile, Headaches and all the many serious troubles which they cause are absolutely relieved and prevented by this Nature Treatment.

We will gladly explain to you the J. B. L. Cascade, why it is so certain in its results, and will give you free of cost an interesting little book containing the results of the experiments of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, who was awarded an International Certificate for 25 years in that city. Get a free booklet at Jacobs Drug Co.—(adv.)

ZANNI IS DELAYED ON HOP TO SHANGHAI.

Poodchow, China, September 28.—Major Pedro Zanni, Argentine round-the-world flier, failed to continue his flight Sunday owing to a defect in the carburetor of his engine, which was repaired during the day.

DUTCH FLIER PLANS TO BEAT D'OLY'S RECORD.

London, September 28.—Open season for "world" flights apparently extends all the way from New Year's day to midnight of December 31.

While reports from the far east indicate that Major Pedro L. Zanni, the Argentine, intends to brave an Aleutian winter rather than abandon his attempt, a Dutch effort to fly from Amsterdam to Batavia, Dutch East Indies, is scheduled to begin on October 1.

The Dutch flight will be made in an ordinary Fokker air express, with a pilot of outclassing telephoto achievement accomplished last summer by Captain Pelletier d'Oisy in a French machine. Heer van der Hopp is the pilot who will contest D'Oisy's record for this part of the world, as well as a record for 9,000 miles, hoping to maintain an average of 85 miles an hour over the entire distance from Amsterdam to Batavia.

Van der Hopp's hope will be by way of Constantinople, Aleppo, Bagdad, Bunder Abbas, Karachi, Allahabad, Calcutta, Akyab, Rangoon and Bangkok. It is practically the same route, for this part of the world, as that used by the United States world fliers, the section between Amsterdam and Bagdad being the only difference.

Both plane and pilot have been working in the regular aerial services between Amsterdam and Croydon, England. The only alterations in the machine will be the fitting of dual control, special wireless telephony apparatus, and a reserve petrol tank. The large cabin of the liner, in which passengers have been regularly carried throughout the summer, will be used for carrying spare parts and food. Except for the crossing of the Bay of Bengal, the whole route will lie overland. The longest lap will be the last, from Padang to Batavia, a distance of about 620 miles. Sufficient provisions for three persons for three days will always be carried.

HERE ARE STATISTICS ON WORLD FLIGHT.

Sand Point Field, Seattle, Wash., September 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—Among the salient features of the United States army globe-circling flight that ended today, were: The flight was started officially by four planes from Seattle, Wash., 8:30 a. m., Sunday, April 6, under command of Major Frederick L. Martin, in the flag plane Seattle, and was completed today—five months and twenty days—by two of the original machines and the Boston II, a spare air-cruiser sent to Pictou Harbor, Nova Scotia, for Lieutenant Leigh Wade, whose machine was wrecked near Faroe islands, August 21.

The aviators originally left Santa Monica, Cal., March 17, but, on account of delays in substituting post-office landing gear here, the official hop-off was made from Seattle, cutting 19 days off the journey.

The personnel of the flight included Major Martin, commander, and his mechanic, Staff Sergeant Alva Harvey, who were missing for ten days after their flag plane Seattle was wrecked April 30, on a mountain near Fort Moller, Alaska peninsula, on the Bering sea coast and who were forced to quit the expedition; Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, commander after Major Martin's accident, pilot of the flag Chicago; Lieutenant Erik H. Nelson, pilot of the New Orleans; Lieutenant Leigh Wade, pilot of the ill-fated Boston, and mechanics, Lieutenants Leslie P. Arnold, John Harding, Jr., and Henry H. Ogden.

The route of the aviators traversed or touched 21 foreign countries and 25 states and one territory of the United States.

A total of 57 hops were made, an average of 483 miles each jump.

With each air-cruiser consuming 20 gallons of gasoline in an hour of flying, the three planes used in approximately 351 flying hours 21,000 gallons of oil every 2,400 miles and in 27,534 miles' flight, the machines had 1,023 gallons of oil.

He was presented with a handsome loving cup by members of his congregation. Rev. Upshaw, who has been with the Buckhead church for the past four years, in tendering his resignation said he saw the necessity of turning over his duties to a younger man. He will leave immediately for the west, where he will make his home with his children, he announced.

Since Rev. Upshaw assumed the pastorate the membership of the Buckhead Baptist church has increased about two-thirds, and not a single death has occurred in the congregation, members said Sunday night.

G. O. P. GRAND ARMY TO OPPOSE SMITH

pot dome" and all its grimy brother-and-sister issues will be brought to the front as nowhere else.

While the democrats were from the beginning determined to get Governor Smith into the race again for the sake of the national ticket, it appeared until the last minute before the state nominating conventions that the gubernatorial fight would be waged on purely state issues. That was Edmund MacHold could have found to get genuinely hot about.

But MacHold withdrew at the last moment, Roosevelt won on the first ballot and democratic leaders now profess to be overjoyed. The oil scandal issue, they declare, has suddenly become vitalized.

"Roosevelt," explains George White, national democratic chairman four years ago and now one of the leading Davis strategists, "was intimately connected with the navy department when the nation's oil reserves were bartered away, and so far as the record goes, did not lift a hand to stop it."

That sums up the democratic attitude which will furnish the principal basis of their state campaign. Republicans declare emphatically that the state is "safe for Coolidge." Almost as emphatically they declare she is "safe for Roosevelt."

Here's G. O. P. Batteries. Meanwhile they are arranging dates for one of the greatest arrays of political speakers ever brought into a single state. At the head of this imposing list is Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, who is scheduled for at least one speech, to be delivered at Carnegie hall, October 15. Others include Frank W. Mondell, former G. O. P. floor leader in the house; Senator Willis, of Ohio; former Mayor J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia; United States Solicitor General James M. Beck, Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania; Senator Pennington, of Maine; Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Eliot Wadsworth; Senator Jones, of New Hampshire; former Governor Stokes, of New Jersey, and Professor Robert McElroy, of Princeton, a biographer of Woodrow Wilson.

The democrats have not yet made such pretentious plans for outside aid, but declare they are prepared to meet any republican onslaught.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE DEFENDS HUSBAND

ing down from the mountains. The bad weather was blamed by those in charge for the small audience which listened to the genial little woman whose vigorous delivery, gained from many campaigns by the side of her husband, defied the age which speaks from the lines in her face. The amphitheater, roofed but open to the air all around, was only partially filled. The sound of the continual downpour formed a monotonous undertone to the remarks of Mrs. La Follette.

Her audience was composed of humble folks, farmers, miners and town people and their wives. Many young mothers brought their babies with them and sat through the entire meeting. Mrs. La Follette was given an ovation when she arose to speak. She plunged immediately into her talk and proceeded without using notes. She wore a brown dress and a black hat, and stood on the flower-decked platform as she spoke.

"He has always been practical," Mrs. La Follette said of her husband. "The object he sought has always been within reach. It has been the next step ahead."

"I'll tell you why the opposition has been so bitter. It is because the reforms for which Mr. La Follette has stood have teeth in them. He is never satisfied with half-way measures and compromises that have high-sounding names but that defeat the cause they profess to champion."

It was as the companion of her husband's arduous uphill struggle that Mrs. La Follette spoke. With pride she recounted incidents of their political battles together. She told of her husband's first appearance in the senate, and how from the galleries she watched senators leave the chamber as he began to talk. She told of her voice as she told of his brusque remark that the people would keep many of those who walked out from re-appearing. She told of the abuse which had been heaped upon her husband, but said that he was not a "martyr."

"He likes his job, he likes his work, and he wants to go before the people for president."

Mrs. La Follette defended the war record of her husband, declaring that he always "fought imperialism and militarism."

She used homely expressions and comparisons.

"Calls Harding 'Kindly Man.'"

"If you want a government with some human blood in it—then vote the progressive ticket," she urged. She attacked the republican administration, especially Fall and Daugherty, and described Harding as a "kindly man" whom she had hoped would get along all right when elected.

There was no indication of any hostility among those present. There was some talk, however, about the attempt to prevent the meeting, which was held to hostile political elements by Mrs. Sallay A. Burch, county chairman of the independent movement, who has a home in Washington and was prominent in the fight for suffrage.

After she had secured the privilege of the hall in a telegram from Morris E. Ehlens, secretary and treasurer of the national board of foreign missions at New York, which was confirmed by letter, he telegraphed her Friday that the amphitheater could not be used for the political meeting on Sunday and that he had not known the day was Sunday when he consented. Mrs. Burch said she replied that she had contracted for the hall and would use it and nothing further had been done. She said it was her belief that hostile political elements had intervened with Ehlens and that the Sunday observance was a pretext.

DAVIS AND DAWES SPRING SURPRISE

ties is that revealed by Dawes, who has been campaigning in the La Follette strongholds of the west.

Dawes Pads His Hammer.

During his trip through the home country of La Follette, Dawes softened his previous bitter arraignment by explaining that however much he disagrees with the things La Follette stands for, he respects his courage and likes the way he fights.

This adoption of the padded hammer by both sides is due to reports which have convinced both republican and democratic politicians that La Follette has been thriving on the rough treatment he has been receiving. The hope had been to secure votes away from La Follette, but he has received a good deal of sympathy instead.

Reports of La Follette gains come not alone from his own prejudiced and over-optimistic workers. They come from hard-boiled republicans and democratic scoundrels. One of the most confirmed reactionary scoundrels in the republican party has just returned from a trip to the coast with the warning that Coolidge forces will have to do some strenuous work west of the Mississippi.

Democrats Abandon Northwest.

Democrats already have abandoned hope in the northwest and are giving La Follette a clear field. They hope that by permitting the opposition to Coolidge to remain concentrated, they can stop the republican candidate there, while battling to get the eastern states for themselves.

Warren Waters Kidnaped Child, Woman Alleges

Hazelhurst, Ga., September 28.—Mrs. H. C. Woodell, 15 First avenue, Dickson Cotton Mill Village, Laurinburg, N. C., charges in a letter that has just been received by Chief of Police Hugh McLean that Warren Waters, who was hanged here on September 19 for the murder of Marshal T. J. McLean, kidnaped her son fourteen years ago. The boy at that time was four years of age, the writer says. His name was Daniel Hardee.

The account of the execution, published in North Carolina papers, was read by Mrs. Woodell and she says that she immediately recognized Waters as the man who took her child from Columbus county, North Carolina.

At the time Mrs. Woodell was a young widow and she says that the Waters family were friends of her husband and that her young son was temporarily residing with Warren Waters and his wife. She claims that Laurinburg and carried young Daniel with them. She says she tried for years to locate her son, who is now 18 years of age.

She said that her son was now known as Daniel Hardee and that he did not know his mother and father. Soon thereafter the boy ran away and went to Florida. During the trouble of the war, Waters was located at Palatka, Fla., working in a box factory or saw mill, and offered to contribute financial aid for the defense of Waters but did not come back for the trial.

Chief McLean says that he has advised Mrs. Woodell where she may locate her son.

BRYAN CONFIDENT OF G. O. P. DEFEAT

Chicago, September 28.—Governor Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, here to attend a conference over his campaign for the vice presidency on the democratic ticket, fairly beams as he comments with gusto on what he terms "the break the republicans have made everywhere, particularly in California, by fighting La Follette and Wheeler."

In his opinion the republicans wrote the death warrant of their national ticket when they went into court in California to keep the independent ticket off the ballot. Bryan said, "That act has routed country-wide resentment and the republicans have lost through it."

"Bitter resentment over the unfair tactics of the republican national convention, sweeping the entire west," Bryan continued, "The American people like fair play and whether we agree with Senator La Follette or not has nothing to do with the issue at stake."

"In my home state things will go, and I am sure from my own observations that Kansas, Wyoming, Colorado and Oklahoma will go strongly democratic. The efforts of the republicans to paint La Follette and Wheeler as blackguards seeking to overthrow their country have only incensed thousands of persons who normally would be republican."

Asked what he thought the democratic national ticket would do in eastern states, Bryan replied that the democrats undoubtedly would run ahead in most of the eastern states, with the possible exception of one or two rock-ribbed republican strongholds in the north.

"It looks like a democratic year to me and I feel confident that our ticket will be swept into office," Bryan said.

DOHENY REELECTED AS COLLEGE TRUSTEE

Santa Barbara, Calif., September 28.—After considerable argument among delegates to the 40th Southern California conference of the Methodist Episcopal church yesterday, Edward L. Doheny, Jr., son of the California oil millionaire, was re-elected a trustee of the University of Southern California, a Methodist institution.

The young Mr. Doheny, who is associated with his father in the Pan-American Petroleum corporation, is defendant in some of the civil and criminal suits brought by the government in connection with oil leases.

The conference adopted a resolution asking the board of trustees that in the event the charges against Doheny are sustained his services with the university be terminated.

INDEPENDENT MEET WILL OPEN TODAY

Macon, Ga., September 28.—(Special.)—The state convention of the independent, or La Follette-Wheeler party, to be held here at Hotel Dempsey tomorrow, will ignore the Ku Klux Klan issue entirely, according to leaders of the party in this state arriving here tonight. La Follette has repeatedly denounced the Klan.

C. W. McClure, of Atlanta, was one of the first arrivals here today. He said most of the delegates will reach Macon during the night. The convention will not get down to work until 11:30 o'clock in the morning.

"There are more progressives in Georgia than most people realize," Mr. McClure stated tonight. "We are going to complete here in Macon a strong state organization and put up a great fight in Georgia to wrench Wall Street from control of the national government."

There will be a number of lookouts at the convention, including women from Macon, Atlanta and other cities. Mrs. B. T. Neal, of Atlanta, publicity chairman, stated tonight there is a general invitation to all women to attend the convention. She expressed the hope that the League of Women Voters, of Macon, will be well represented.

Three thousand invitations were sent out to people in various parts of Georgia. It is known a special effort has been made to secure the old progressive and Tom Watson following and also the labor people of the state. How much of the Klan following can be obtained is not known. Rev. Roy

E. Davis, of Fitzgerald, who obtained considerable notoriety some time ago in the Farmers' union and Klan organizations of south Georgia, will be present. It was said tonight.

Officials to Speak.

R. E. Corey, of Atlanta, regional director for 11 southern states with headquarters at Birmingham, will be here tomorrow morning and will be active in the completion of the progressive organization in the state. He will address the convention.

Marvin Harwell, state secretary of the La Follette-Wheeler organization in Georgia, will also be present. James L. Sibley, of Milledgeville, who managed C. W. McClure's campaign for the United States senate, is another man of prominence in the organization. Electors will be appointed by the convention, a vice chairman chosen, county and district chairmen named and various committees appointed. The matter of forming a speakers' bureau will be considered and campaign managers will be selected. A tentative women's organization will also be provided for.

Included in the list of delegates who are expected to attend are William Pollard, Atlanta labor leader; Marvin Poole, former oil inspector; William Poole, who has been selected to handle the financial end of the Georgia campaign; F. W. Hendrickson, of Milledgeville; J. Matt Hayes, Dr. D. I. Farmer, J. D. Atkins and Martin S. McGehee, of the Thompson organization; H. N. Evans, of Manchester; J. W. Valley, of Atlanta, chairman of the Wheeler county organization; C. J. Brown, of Decatur, who is representing machinists; W. N. Marchman and Dr. J. A. Rogers, of Jeffersonville; R. E. Elrod, Atlanta, chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; T. M. Willbanks and W. J. Lewis, of Oysterfield; R. E. Palmer and A. W. McDaniel, of Gibson, and Dr. Grace Kirkland, of Atlanta.

TATE CONFESSES HE HELPED SLAY

They believed they never would be found out, Tate told the sheriff. "When we heard people talking about that minister, Bight, and Mrs. Sweetin, we began to get scared and Ruby and I thought that perhaps we had better go away," Tate said. "But we didn't know that we were suspected until we were arrested."

The little town of Ina, Ill., is about 65 miles from Johnston City, and when news of the suspicions of the townsfolk there about the Bight-Sweetin case reached Tate's own home town, the people there began recalling the circumstances under which Herrington had died. This led to the exhumation of Herrington's body. During an examination of the stomach evidence indicating arsenical poisoning was discovered.

Mrs. Tate was arrested Saturday shortly after she had gone to the cemetery in Johnston City where her husband's body was being exhumed. She entered the cemetery just in time to see men lifting the casket out of the grave. She had gone to her former home to inquire whether a miner's union death benefit due for Herrington's death had been paid to her mother. Tate was arrested soon afterwards.

Woman Confessed Twice.

Mrs. Tate made two confessions. In the first confession she denied that she had anything to do with her first husband's death but added that she believed Tate might have poisoned him. Her second confession was an admission that she and Tate together had administered him a series of doses of poison.

Informing late Sunday of Tate's confession and his charges that she had finished what he had started, Mrs. Herrington said:

"I loved that man once but now I hate him. He made me do this. I did not know what I was doing. I loved him so that I did not want anybody else around."

Portions of Mrs. Tate's confession, which had much to do with the breaking down of Tate, read:

"Robert Tate came to my house on Thursday, August 21, and we talked of poisoning my husband. He said he would get the poison if I would give it to him. I did not have the nerve to do it. He said he was going to have me if it took death to get me and that he would poison him himself."

The woman's confession said that the first dose of arsenic was placed in Herrington's lunch on August 28, and that two days later the final dose was given him. Herrington died September 8.

Tate Set Up With Corpses.

Tate, discussing the poisoning with the sheriff, said that he fell in love with Mrs. Herrington last March, when he was a roomer in the Herrington home. It was not until the latter part of April, he said, that Mrs. Herrington showed signs of returning his affection. For weeks before they discussed poisoning Herrington, Tate said, they had talked of how easy it would be for them if the woman's husband was out of the way.

One of the most astonishing parts of Tate's story is that which describes how he took an active part in Herrington's funeral. The night before the funeral he was one of a group of mourners who sat up all night in the Herrington home beside the coffin. Troops were patrolling the area around the jail where Tate and his wife are confined. This community has been the scene of many outbreaks and the authorities intend to take no chances. The national guardsmen have been brought here for duty during trials arising from the last riot between Ku Klux Klan and anti-klan factions here.

This Is the Gas Range That Brings the Magic Into Your Kitchen

Spend Less Time in the Kitchen

LORAIN OVEN HEAT REGULATOR QUICK MEAL Gas Range

LET US EXPLAIN

Why Stay Hours in the Kitchen Watching the Oven

You know it takes more time to cook most dishes than to prepare them. In fact, in a few minutes you can prepare a roast for the oven. It takes hours of watching, however, before it is "done." That is why, probably, over 60 per cent of your time is spent in the kitchen. No wonder you hate it. But you can be free from this perpetual "pot-watching."

Can go miles away and enjoy the hours of the afternoon and come home to find the meal cooked—and ready for the table. That is—you can do this if you have a gas range equipped with the famous "Red Wheel" Lorraine Oven Heat Regulator. Due to its wonderful aid, all you need to do is to prepare the entire evening meal (a matter of half an hour's work, possibly), place the dishes in the oven, set the "Red Wheel" light the gas and go away. When you return the whole meal will be appetizingly cooked and "ready to be placed on the table."

FEAR OF PLAGUE SEIZES COWMEN

Houston, Texas, September 28.—Fear of the hoof and mouth disease has spread to every section of Texas and cowmen are combining their efforts to fight one of the gravest economic perils that ever threatened the state. Four Texas counties, in which hundreds of animals have been attacked by the malady, are under close quarantine.

Governor Pat Neff has arrived from Austin and taken personal charge of the situation. Counties bordering the quarantined district have been advised to begin the immediate erection of fumigation stations and dipping vats on their main highways and embargoes have been placed on the moving of any products of the soil from the quarantined counties.

May Close Ports. The ports of Galveston, Houston and Texas City may be closed to navigation to prevent the spread from there of any germs. Cotton exporters with huge shipments of cotton on the wharves view the situation with increased alarm.

Texas, easily apprehensive since the invasion of the boll weevil, is in even greater fear of the new peril. Throughout the state for the last two days when the epidemic was first made public, there has been talk of little else.

Scores of federal and state officers were poured into the Houston district immediately. Texas rangers joined them.

Herd Close Guarded. A close guard as established over the 2,000 head of cattle in the 6,000 acres of ranch land ravaged by the disease and ranches being visited Sunday for the slaughter of 1,100 of these animals.

Dr. W. F. Cotton, chief of the bureau of animal industry at Washington, is at the head of the 42 federal officials and inspectors in the district.

MARY had just promised to marry Jimmie. He had saved only a limited amount of money and was wondering—would Mary rather have an automobile or a diamond ring? It was sure he could not afford both. He decided to ask her. After all, it was her right to decide.

Mary thought he was foolish to have even considered such a thing—"You know, Jimmie," said Mary, "we can get an automobile any time in the future—but I do want an engagement ring!"

This is the sentiment of 99 per cent of the women today. An engagement ring is the one thing they look forward to from the days of their "first sweet-heart."

14 SKELETONS FOUND IN INDIAN MOUND

West Palm Beach, Fla., September 28.—Bones of 14 human skeletons, some almost intact, have been uncovered at 12 miles south of here on the shores of Lake Worth and at a point where that body of water is separated from the ocean beach by some 50 yards of high land.

The skeletons were found by workmen when cutting a new roadway along the lake shore to displace the ocean boulevard. They were discovered about 18 inches below the surface of a mound 10 feet high and 40 feet in diameter. Excavations for the new road were made between two mounds to avoid moving so much earth. The burial mound is composed of beach sand, and the skeletons were found lying in tiers, the skulls pointing to the apex. The skeleton of a baby was found beside one, that of a dog beside another.

Besides the skeletons were found several pieces of glass, some in amethyst and amber. A pair of scissors almost rusted away, two bone needles and iron bracelets rusted into the wrist bones also were discovered. A lead bullet also was found.

Pieces of pottery were believed to be baked of clay with a shell binder were found in numerous quantities. Contour of these pieces, some of the bowls were three inches deep and 18 inches in diameter, while others approach the broken parts of vase-like bowls. All of these are red or black in color, the outside surface indicating that they had been moulded in reed or fiber baskets.

So far the excavators have explored about half of this mound. The mound stands upon a hill of the same proportions is composed of fresh water shells, mostly small, interspersed with a few conch. Layers of charcoal lead to the belief that this mound was used for the purpose of burning the dead. The mound work declares that the skeletons unmistakably are those of Indians. A third mound stands nearby.

KLAN FINDS METHOD OF DODGING STATUTE

New Orleans, La., September 28.—The Ku Klux Klan in Louisiana has found a way to get around the new state law requiring the membership lists of secret orders to be deposited with the secretary of state according to The New Orleans Daily States. Actual membership in the Klan, the newspaper declares, has been reduced to five men in each local Klan. All the other members have been granted demits and their membership transferred to the rolls in Atlanta, outside the jurisdiction of Louisiana. On December 15, the date for filing the membership lists, the names of the five members of each local Klan will be submitted. The names of those who have "resigned" or transferred their membership to Atlanta will not be included.

3 PERSONS KILLED IN CROSSING CRASH

Asheville, N. C., September 28.—Albert Wakefield, Mrs. Wakefield and Gordon Earwood, of Andrews, N. C., were instantly killed and their automobile completely demolished this afternoon about 2 o'clock when struck by a Southern railway passenger train, one-half mile east of Andrews.

According to reports received by The Citizen, the car was driven in front of the approaching train, too late for the engineer to bring the train to a stop.

J. H. Richardson was engineer on the train, which was proceeding to Murphy.

DUBLIN MAY LAND $1,000,000 PULP MILL

Dublin, Ga., September 28.—(Special.)—Decision is expected before Tuesday regarding the location here of the $1,000,000 pulp and naval stores plant. The amount of stock which Dublin citizens are supposed to subscribe for the new industry has been secured, it is stated, and the amount will be wired New York capitalists interested in the project Monday.

Location of the plant has been doubtful for several days, it is claimed, owing to hesitancy of citizens in subscribing the amount of stock requested of Dublin and Laurens counties. A sufficient acreage of stump lands has been secured to warrant operation of the plant for a period of 20 years, it is stated, and only minor details are being worked out, those in charge assert.

In event of favorable decision and Dublin is awarded the plant, construction will begin immediately and is expected to be in full operation within four months after date of the start.

HEALTH TALKS BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE FOOTSTEPS OF MRS. JACK SPRATT.
Remember, Mrs. Jack Spratt did the trick and told her story here? Well, it appears that an Illinois woman believed her and followed in the footsteps of Mrs. Jack Spratt. The Illinois woman now broadcasts her story, and you may listen in on it if you like:

Dear Sir: I have been reading your articles with great interest for several years, but didn't "come down to earth" about my own weight until I read the first extract you printed from "Mrs. Jack Spratt's" letters in which she said she had lost seven pounds the first week. If she could do it, I could, and so I started. The first two days were awful, but after that it has been no effort at all.

Five years ago when I was married I weighed 118. After my first baby came I began to gain and in three months I had reached 150. In the last three months I have reduced to 127 pounds. How much farther do I need to go? I am 24 years old and 65 inches tall.

I feel better now than I ever felt since I left college. The last summer has been a pleasure, and how I have dreaded the hot weather before. Although my health has always been good I did have quite a bit of trouble with varicose veins, and now these have almost entirely disappeared.

Last, but not least, although you probably will think much of this, I have had my hair bobbed! And my husband "fallen" all over again.

Friends just stop and stare. "How did you do it?" "I guess I'll have to try that," I hear on every side.

Am I happy? So much so I just have to write and tell you. Dr. Brady, and also "Mrs. Jack Spratt," for one of the best things that has ever happened to me—the regaining of my long lost youth, for such I feel it is.

Very sincerely,
Mrs. M. E. H. — "Mrs. Jack Spratt," attained her present state of happiness via the Karell system, or rather the Karell system with supplementary trimmings by Brady. Karell was a good doctor, so I believe he would approve of the trimmings which I added to meet present conditions.

"Mrs. Jack Spratt," an occasional reader, a fat one at any rate, may recall, dived on backbones—she proved that a proposition I had made was false. She proved that a fat woman may have a backbone, after all. All right, I was in error about that. And I am glad to have Mrs. M. E. H. corroborate "Mrs. Jack Spratt." Only Mrs. M. E. H. wasn't a fat woman to begin with. A woman not over 10 per cent too heavy for her height isn't fat. Yet Mrs. M. E. H. was headed that way and her recovery is therefore a beautiful gain. Her reduction has been accomplished with a coincident improvement in her physical well being. That is always the case, if the reduction regimen is at all advisable. Any reduction of "flesh" or weight at the expense of health or vigor is an adventure in which only the foolish will indulge.

Mrs. M. E. H. says the first two days were "awful." That's where the backbone comes in. Spineless creatures give up within the first two days. They might as well, for they're destined to be fat and weak. Fatness is weakness, both physical and mental. It requires some will power to refuse to overeat.

That Mrs. M. E. H. has "come back" positively and without reservations is clear enough, for doesn't she tell her husband "I have 'fallen' all over again, though she has had her hair cropped?" I should think a husband would fall all over at such a mutilation and swear a little, too. But then maybe Mrs. M. E. H. had gone through a typhoid or something and figured it would be just as well to have it clipped short.

I used to ask me what the Karell method is. No reduction advice can be wheeled out of me unless I think the correspondent should have such information.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Too Bad.
The writer is 60 inches tall and weighs 174 pounds. General health is good except occasional attacks of indigestion and chronic dyspepsia.—D. J.

Answer—That's two bad guesses, best two out of three, so I would advise you to acknowledge to yourself that your health is impaired and consult a physician about your trouble.

No Use Saying No.
I have been doctoring with a doctor who said I had indigestion. Now you say there is no such thing. Will you kindly advise me then?—Mrs. R. M. L.

Answer—Yes, I say so in every combination of words I can devise, but it's no use. I advise you to read and heed the answer given to D. J. above. Perhaps I ought to specify a competent physician.

Starch Into Dextrin.
In an article about the "Covetous Infant" you state: "Boiling converts the starch in oatmeal to dextrin." Is that correct? Does mere boiling convert starch? An authority on this subject will be appreciated by yours truly.—W. G. C.

Answer—Prolonged boiling, according to Withhaus, converts soluble starch into dextrin. Starch is finally glucose. This process is accelerated by boiling with dilute mineral acids. Dry heat, such as toasting, causes starch granules to burst with the formation of dextrin. That's why toast, if the bread is made crisp all through, is more soluble and therefore more readily digested by an invalid.

Oatmeal water or gruel or other cereal water or gruels should be boiled for hours for very young infants, in order to convert much of the starch into more soluble dextrin. This rule does not apply to the feeding of older children or adults, for in all except very young infants the capacity to digest starch is well developed. Often, indeed, it is better that oatmeal be cooked only a few minutes for adults, with a view to leaving considerable unchanged starch to reach the intestine and undergo the wholesome or desirable lactic fermentation there. ## HOLMES INSTITUTE HEAD URGES PRIDE

"Citizens who do not admire and praise the city and state in which they live and get their support are not worthy of its membership," said P. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes Institute, in the prelude of a sermon Sunday morning in South Atlanta Methodist Episcopal church.

Atlanta has grown to be the greatest city in the south because of its good advertisement coming from its citizens who are interested in its development," he said. "Splendid homes and property owned by the colored people of Atlanta and the south and the opportunity they have to make a living and reach their highest development in the south should be highly spoken of by those who are representatives of the race."

Rev. C. L. Johnson, pastor, spoke of the educational work of the Holmes Institute in the city and state.

Europe and Asia are the largest market for American tobacco.

METHODIST TEMPLE IN CHICAGO OPENS

Chicago, September 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—Today in the business and amusement center of this city at Washington and Clark streets, the Chicago temple, bearing a cross 368 feet above the street level, the highest in the world, was dedicated as the place of worship of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

This cross, 12 by 8 feet in dimensions, will, the pastor, Reverend John Thompson, announced in his address, "be illumined every night in the year, keeping the light of God in the heart of Chicago's loop. The Chicago temple," he added, "is preeminently to be a shrine for worship. All classes and creeds will find a hospitality within its walls, akin to the hospitality of heaven."

President Coolidge sent a message that was read at the exercises.

Reverend John Timothy Stott, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Mayor William E. Deen, a Catholic, and Rabbi Joseph Stolz, a Jew, spoke from the same platform with Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of Detroit. Resident Bishop E. H. Hughes, of Chicago, Methodist, and other notable church men.

"My honest congratulations," wrote President Coolidge in his message, which was addressed to George W. Dixon, president of the board of trustees of Chicago temple, "in connection with the dedication of Chicago temple, First Methodist church. I join heartily in the hope which you express that it may be the means of expanding and increasing the effectiveness of the great spiritual work to which it is devoted."

"Unique in many ways as a type of ecclesiastical architecture, it will bring together the spiritual and the lay activities of the church, giving from each a means of helpful inspiration to the other."

Keep Belief Alive.
"American Methodism has recaptured the spirit of the cathedral-builders," said Mr. Dixon. "Here in the very heart of the new world, in this twentieth century era, of material progress, in the center of this great city of energy and enterprise and achievement, it has reared a temple to the God of truth. Into the building of this temple have gone the skill of science and industry, the inspiration of architectural genius, the glad gifts of thousands who believe that God is the supreme need of the modern world."

"This modern cathedral of Methodism with its great organ and chime of bells, must mean a constant calling of men and women back to the loving God."

To compete with automobiles in short haul passenger and freight traffic, the Swedish railway system is adding many gasoline motors for haulage.

AUGUSTA LAWYER DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART ATTACK

Augusta, Ga., September 28.—(Special.)—Sam Meyers, one of Augusta's most prominent lawyers and well known throughout the state, died suddenly here today. He had been in good health up until the time of his death. He was a victim of heart failure.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CAPT. J. C. GARNETT DIES AT AUGUSTA

Augusta, Ga., September 28.—(Special.)—Capt. J. C. Garnett, an employee of the government in river development work in the Augusta district, died here this morning after a short illness. Captain Garnett was born in Severn county and had been a resident of Augusta for 25 years.

Funeral services will be held Monday with interment at Laurel Grove cemetery, Savannah.

Bryan and Daniels Expected To Speak To Mercer Students

Macon, Ga., September 28.—(Special.)—Josephus Daniels, owner of The News and Observer, of Raleigh, N. C., and former secretary of the navy under Woodrow Wilson, will lecture to Mercer students on some phase of newspaper work after Christmas, according to announcement by Thomas J. Hamilton, editor of The Augusta Chronicle, who is arranging the addresses.

William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state under Wilson, has not definitely agreed to lecture in Macon, but it is understood from his secretary that he may be expected.

Walter C. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association and general manager of The Chattanooga News, has been booked for an address, as has McDavid Horton, managing editor of The State, of Columbia, S. C.

W. E. Page, general manager of The Columbus Ledger, and Charles J. Bayne, associate editor of The Macon News, are also just announced on the program of editors and writers.

Others who will appear are James B. Nevin, editor of The Atlanta Georgian; Charles E. Brown, editor of The Cordele Dispatch; William Cole Jones, editorial writer of The Atlanta Journal; James A. Holloman, associate editor of The Atlanta Constitution; Colonel John Temple Graves, editor of The Hendersonville (N. C.) Times and formerly prominent in Georgia; and Richard H. Edmonds, editor of The Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, who will compose a paper to be read.

Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, and John S. Cohen, of The Journal, are expected to speak also.

OWNERS OF PROPERTY ON MAYSON AVENUE Want Name Changed

Property owners will petition to have Mayson avenue, in Fulton county, changed to Peachtree boulevard at the next meeting of the Fulton county commissioners, it was learned Sunday.

Petitioners point out that there are two avenues in the county named Mayson avenue, and also a Mayson and Turner road. This similarity, according to property owners, is very confusing. It is said that if commissioners grant the request many who live along the avenue intend to set out peach trees on property lines.

Salaries paid women in municipal sewerage work in this country range from $720 to $5,000 a year.

PROMINENT ATLANTIAN IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

James H. Sledge, well-known Atlantian and stepson of General William A. Wright, comptroller general of Georgia, died Sunday afternoon at the residence of General Wright, 96 East Fifteenth street.

Mr. Sledge, who was 45 years of age, had been ill for several months, but his condition was not thought critical until the past week.

He was born July 13, 1879, in Troup county, near LaGrange, Ga. He was for many years connected with the wildland offices in the state capital.

Mr. Sledge is survived by his parents, General and Mrs. William A. Wright; two sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Phinizy, of Athens, and Mrs. A. B. Bryan, of Clemson College, S. C.; one brother, A. R. Wright, of Atlanta. He was a nephew of Colonel Albert H. Cox, of Bremen, Ga.; Sterling A. Cox, Mrs. Anna Cox Stiles, Miss Georgia A. Cox, Miss Fannie Cox, Mrs. H. E. White, all of Atlanta, and Mat Sledge and Mrs. Newton Adams of LaGrange.

Funeral services will be held from the residence of General Wright Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. C. W. J. Harrell officiating. The body will be carried to LaGrange for interment, with Barclay & Brandon, funeral directors, in charge. Pallbearers, who will be selected at a later date, will meet at the residence.

INDIAN PUBLICIST TO LECTURE HERE EARLY THIS WEEK

C. Janarajadasa, noted Indian publicist and mystic who is passing through the United States en route from Madras to London, will give two lectures in Atlanta Monday and Tuesday. Lectures will be given at the Ansley hotel roof garden and will begin at 8:15 o'clock each night. The subject of his lectures here will be "The Spiritual Factor in National Life" and "The Coming of Christ and His Message."

The Indian publicist's appearance here is under the auspices of the local branch of the American Theosophical society.

Fred Jackson's Old House is the Talk of the Town!

Simple, Inexpensive Alterations made it our Show Place

FOR years Fred Jackson's place was a blot on the landscape! One of those square, hipped-roof monstrosities, with a dinky little railing hugging the chimney.

Fred was always going to build a new home—so he never did anything to the old one. Result: it looked uglier and shabbier every year. Then, one day—

He sent for the Barrett Book

On page 12 he found a house just like his, with sketches and plans for improving it. Before the week was out he sent for our local builder and, after a careful estimate of costs, told him to get busy.

Look at the house now—modern, artistic and up-to-date—a house anyone would be proud to own. And if Fred wanted to, he could sell tomorrow at a sweet profit.

You need the Barrett Book

Of course, each old house presents its own peculiar problems. But there are any number of different ways to make old houses attractive. In "Better Homes from Old Houses," all the common types of old-fashioned dwellings are shown. Alterations are suggested for each. You're sure to see a house which resembles your own, and sketches and plans showing you how to improve it.

Of course, the roof is important

When making improvements, lay a new roof of Barrett Shingles right over the old wooden shingles. Low in first cost, easy to lay, Barrett Shingles never need painting or staining, never rot or rust. Their soft colors afford great artistic possibilities, and they are highly fire-resistant. Ask your hardware, building supply or lumber merchant to show you the four styles of Barrett Shingles.

Get the Barrett Book!

Prepared by a staff of leading architects, "Better Homes from Old Houses" makes home-remodeling simple and economical. Every common type of old house is featured. Every step is carefully explained in plans, sketches and text. It shows you all the shortcuts to a modern comfortable home. Your hardware, lumber or building supply merchant has this book or—

"Secrets."

(At the Lyric.)

"Secrets," the sweetest love story ever told, is to be presented at the Lyric theater all this week in the original speaking stage version, which Sam H. Harris produced with tremendous success on Broadway and which was adapted to the screen as a starling vehicle for Norma Talmadge.
Miss Edith King has the Talmadge role, a glorification of loyal womanhood in an exciting story of a wedded adventure.

It began with an elopement of a peasant and a clerk, carried them through pioneer battles in the western wilderness and unlawful love in an eastern mansion up to the beautiful closing chapter when the lifelong lovers await final darkness, hand in hand. The play opens with ladies' bargain performance tonight, and may be seen any other night or at Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday matinee.

"The Barber of Seville," another big-time act, will be seen at Loew's Grand theater this week, headlining a bill of exceptional merit. "The Barber of Seville" is a comedy offering, with a cast of seven people, including the well-known comedians, Burns and Kissner, and featuring Mark Adams and Ben Rubens. It is a sure entertainer. Jack Ryan and Bee O-Neil will be seen in "Capering Con-ningly with Cute Cutups," a clever song and dance offering. Three other splendid acts, including specialty numbers, complete the vaudeville.
Adolphe Menjou, Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagle are in the feature picture, "Sinners in Silk."

"Feet of Clay."

(At the Howard.)

DeMille again! Two words—but they mean much, and when you think of "Triumph," "The Ten Commandments" and other such successes, you may take them to signify that "Feet of Clay," Cecil B. DeMille's latest production, which is the feature production at the Howard at this week, is another big motion picture knockout. And that's just what we wanted to say. It features Rod LaRocque, Vera Reynolds, Ricardo Cortez, Julia
Faye, Theodore Kosloff and Robert Edeson, and others.

"The Female."

(At the Rialto.)

Betty Compton is supported by an unique cast in "The Female," which opens a week's engagement at the Rialto theater today, and one of the most successful engagements of the full season is confidently expected for it by the producers. It is the adaptation of Cynthia Stockley's great novel, "Dalla, the Lion Cub," one of the most unique stories ever published.

JITNEY OPERATOR RELIEVED OF CASH BY "STICK-UP" MEN

C. C. Lowe, of R. F. D. No. 5, a jitney driver, was relieved of $10
and his jitney, as well, temporarily, by two "gentlemen" stick-up men,
who, after robbing him Sunday night and ordering him to abandon the car, later left the machine parked a short distance away.

Lowe, in relating his story to police, said while driving out Stewart avenue, with several passengers in his car, two well groomed dapper young men hailed him, one getting into the front seat and the other in the rear seat. When he reached the Hill venue, he said, and all other passengers had been discharged, he felt a touch in the ribs, and turning was confronted by a masked man with a pistol in his hand. He was relieved of his money and the man in the front seat and ordered to "clear out."

Ponce de Leon Church

Women To Entertain

At Dinner Tuesday

The dinner at which the women of Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church will entertain at the church on Wednesday evening, at 6:30, will be the annual church dinner, it was announced Sunday night. There will be no invitations and it will be very informal. All members of Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church are asked to attend, in the announcement mailed out by Edith M. Campbell, secretary.

TWO STORES ROBBED BY THIEVES SUNDAY

Two stores were burglarized sometime before dawn Sunday morning, although police do not believe the thieves got very much for their trouble.
At J. H. Steinberger's store, at 16
Lorway street, and the American Office Equipment company's place, at 35 Exchange place, were entered.
At Steinberger's store the money
box on the telephone was robbed, and a small quantity of groceries is said to have been taken. Police believe the robbers were frightened away before getting anything at the American Office Equipment company's place.

"BLUES" IS THEME USED BY MINISTER

Rev. Russell Brown spoke to his congregation Sunday at the First Congregational church on "Some Benefits From Discouragement." "When you have the blues," he said, "it takes you right down to the rock-bottom and teaches you to rely on God and not on yourselves." He told his audience that "Some weightlifters in life are essential to keep them from falling, and that no man prays effectively who does not feel his own emptiness."

GREENSBORO PLANS MACCABEE LODGE

Greensboro, Ga., September 28.— (Special.)—State Commander R. E.
Leatherman, of Georgia Maccabees, was in Greensboro the last two days con-fering with local members of Maccabees relative to reorganizing the local lodges of the order here.
L. A. Boswell, one of the leading citizens and officials in the local lodge, introduced State Commander Leatherman to leading citizens and Mr. Boswell predicts that with the assurance of Atlanta's famous degree team coming to Greensboro, a big membership of this order will be established here.

Some of the local members are taking keen interest in plans for the Maccabee caravan to Washington next year and a number are expecting to join the Atlanta delegation to this big international gathering of the Maccabees in July, 1935, in the nation's capital.

SEABOARD WILL AID FARMERS OF TOOMBS

Lyons, Ga., September 28.— (Special.)—F. M. Connor, agricultural agent for the Seaboard Air Line railroad, Saturday conferred with County Agent C. G. Garner as to the schedule of moving pictures and lectures on agricultural topics to be held in this county November 5. A free picture show will be given at Johnson Corner Consolidated school that morning and will be followed by one that afternoon at Vi-alia and one at Lyons at 7:30 o'clock that night.
J. F. Berry, of the United States department of agriculture, will be here to speak.

Pretty Miss, Police Sergeant, Quick and Sure With Her Gun

SERGEANT FRANCIS MEADE

Topeka, Kan., September 27.—The Topeka police force, which has 50 members, has a woman sergeant.
She is pretty Miss Francis Meade, whose duties are largely confined to clerk work at headquarters.

RUBIN-CHERRY SHOWS WILL ARRIVE FRIDAY

The Rubin and Cherry shows, which will furnish the tented entertainment at the Southeastern fair this year, will occupy more space than has been required by any carnival playing Lakewood park, according to Superintendent Arrowood, who located the space for the shows Saturday.

This aggregation, which is making its first appearance in Atlanta, carries 20 separate shows, and travels on its own special train of 37 cars. It is scheduled to reach Atlanta on the night of October 3, and will have its tops up when the turnstiles of the big fair gates begin to turn next Saturday morning.

The show is said to carry all of the very latest carnival attractions and is equipped in every way for entertaining every class of fair visitors and boasts of the title "The Aristocrat of the Tented World."

FOUR ARRESTED WHEN ONE MISSES WALLET AND $200

J. S. Poole, 43, of 572 South Pryor street was robbed of $200 late Sunday night and police are holding Estelle Gray, 28, of 43 Woodward avenue, and J. R. (Clap) Ward, 32, of 454 Stewart avenue in connection with the disappearance of the money.
Detectives M. P. Warren and J. W.
Woolley, who made the arrests, state that Poole visited the home of Estelle Gray, and was supplied with a quart of gin by Ward. After imbibing freely of the liquor, officers state someone removed the $200 from Poole's pockets.

AMBULANCE HITS LIGHT TOURING CAR TWO ARRESTED

Four persons narrowly escaped death early Monday morning when a Grady hospital ambulance, in Peachtree street, near Five Points, collided with a car driven by Gus Hall, negro, 40, of 1000 Peachtree street.
C. G. Aiken, driver of the ambulance, H. M. Angle, 36, a patient being taken to the hospital; Bob Jones, 19, occupant of the negro's car, and Hall were shaken up, but no one was hurt.

DINNER STORIES

An elderly woman from the provinces in the train for the British Empire exhibition asked her fellow-passengers at every station if she had arrived at Wembley Park. At one stop she inquired of an ancient man sitting opposite: "Is this Wembley?"
"You'll have to speak up; I'm rather deaf," replied the elder.
"Is this Wembley?"
"No; it's Thursday!"

The following bit of humorous dialogue which took place between Oliver Wendell Holmes and a friend is recorded:
"The young lady is in evening dress," said the friend, referring to a rather overdressed damsel.
"The close of the day, my dear sir," remarked the doctor.
"That is Holmes-pun," laughed the friend.
"I'm worried," rejoined the doctor.

A stranger, after obtaining permission to use the phone in a Somerset (Pa.) department store, turned the handle of a pencil sharpening machine fastened to a desk near the telephone, thinking he was ringing the operator.
He lifted the receiver, got his connection and left, along the wires.

RED AND BLACK IN GOOD FORM FOR S. C.

Athens, Ga., September 28.— (Special.)—Emerging from the Mercer game Saturday with no serious casualties, University of Georgia Red and Black football team will begin their season tomorrow afternoon, in preparation for the game with South Carolina here next Saturday.

Saturday's game showed the Red and Black in good form. From an offensive view, the Bulldogs showed class, and the lineemen were charging like demons. Proven quantities were shown for positions in the forward trenches, as well as in the backfield.

RIOT HALTS GRID GAME

Buenos Aires, September 28.—It's the same old game here at the
A. football match Sunday between the Uruguayan Olympic champions and a combined Argentine team was called off when the crowd overran
the field and started to stage a riot.
The management had sold many more "seats" than the grand stand contained.

ATLANTA NEGROES ATTEND O. O. F. MEET

The biennial meeting of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows (colored) which was in session in Pittsburg, Pa., September 23, 24 and 25, was probably the largest and most successful meeting in the history of the order, according to Atlanta negroes who have returned from the convention.

LAURENS FARMERS DEPRESSED BY RAINS

Dublin, Ga., September 28.—(Special.)—Laurens county farmers are more depressed than at any time than at any period since the world war, due to almost continual rainfall over a period of the past ten days.
To date, the precipitation has been greater in this section than at any time for the same period in several decades, according to local weather officials.

Cotton, holding out splendid prospects for farmers this year, is experiencing a tremendous setback. Soaked by the rains, it is dropping to the ground where it sprouts within a short time. This condition practically renders it useless, as grain can only half-way separate lint and seed and the staple is badly damaged by gin cuts.

A large acreage this year was plant-in late opening of the staple, and this crop is suffering most from the unusual season of rains.

THE GUMPS—ALL COTTON AND A YARD WIDE

Red Riding Hood

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Morgan Schuyler, one of New York's leading philanthropic and social lights, is answered by a girl evidently of birth and breeding. In spite of the fact that she admits a desire to hide her identity, Mrs. Schuyler accepts her on trust and tags her with the name of Hope Emerson.

Mrs. Schuyler's family consists of her mother—Mrs. Van Dorn, a young brother—Jim Van Dorn, and an older brother—Bertie, who is away. Sally Willis, Mrs. Schuyler's god-daughter, calls during the course of the morning.

The second morning of her employment Hope faints after receiving a mysterious telephone call. Mrs. Schuyler summons Dr. Horace Osborne.

INSTALLMENT XIII.
THE INQUISITION.

Mrs. Schuyler started to complain to Dr. Osborne about her mother but the old lady hastened to change the subject.

"How's your secretary?" she asked her daughter. "I hear she fainted. I suppose you're overworking her, as you do everybody, but they don't usually collapse in twenty-four hours," she sweetly commented, as she dipped her spoon in her clam broth.

"I'm not overworking her. I haven't had a chance to, yet."

"I've been wondering whether she's any relation of that George Emerson we met in Paris nine years ago," Mrs. Van Dorn went on, endeavoring to suggest by her expression that she had been thinking. "A most delightful man—"

"She's no relation of his," her daughter brusquely interrupted.

"Well, what's the matter with her, then?" The old lady's manner intimated that anything might be expected of one who was not related to George Emerson. "Lack of nutrition?" She turned to Osborne. "She looked pale at luncheon yesterday. And, of course, one never knows whether these young girls Maud picks up at random have had enough to eat."

The doctor came to the relief of his friend, whose pink complexion was taking on an almost purple hue. The common devotion of mother and daughter was deep and sincere, but their effect on each other was nothing short of devastating.

"Mother lives and has her being on the edge of nerves," Maud Schuyler had once told him, while Mrs. Van Dorn, in an equally expansive moment, had offered a similar confidence.

"I can bear all my earthly burdens except my daughter Maud," the old lady confessed. "But as I can't live without Maud, I don't know what I'm going to do about it," she ended with a twinkle.

Now, taking in out of the corner of her eye her daughter's heightened color, Mrs. Van Dorn smiled complacently—she loved to "get under Maud's skin"—and graciously permitted herself to be led to the next topic.

"How many cities did you get on the radio this morning?" Osborne was asking her.

It developed that Mrs. Van Dorn had "got" Schenectady, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Chicago. She had got little beyond the gratifying fact of these connections, but that detail did not disturb her. In the afternoon she expected to "get" Denver, and she had dreams of Havana that evening. Listening to the animated discussion that followed, Maud Schuyler compressed her lips. She was appalled by the selfishness of others, though heaven knows there was nothing new about it. Here she was in this unpleasant tangle, with a girl in her house who might be connected with a gang of crooks and bootleggers for all she knew, and her mother and the youth she had fed with honey buns in his infancy prattled of stations and states.

"You're sure she'll be up again today, aren't you, Horace?" she suddenly demanded, in the midst of a dispute concerning various makes of loud speakers.

Osborne hesitated.

"I think so," he said. "But I'll know better when I've seen her again. Will you ask Kawa to bring me an extra cup of clam broth? I want Miss Emerson to have some."

Mrs. Schuyler rang the bell, and upon Kawa's appearance laid the burden of this additional duty upon the overworked servant. When the clam broth arrived the doctor arose.

"I don't eat desserts, you know," he reminded his hostess. "So, if you'll excuse me, I'll take this right in to Miss Emerson. Suppose you follow when you've finished your lunch."

He shouldered his way down the side corridor in a characteristic manner that seemed to include the pushing aside of invisible obstacles, and, tapping on the door of the little room, opened it without waiting for a response. Then he stopped on the threshold with a sharp exclamation of annoyance. His patient, white uniform off and dressed for the street even to hat, coat, and gloves, was standing in the center of the room. A small brief case she was fastening offered further testimony that she was on the point of leaving the house.

Doctor Osborne hit his lip. He was not accustomed to disobedience, and there was a reminder of this in the voice in which he spoke.

"If I had thought you were so foolish," he jerked out, "I'd have put Kawa or Nancy here to keep you quiet."

"I'm sorry." The offender's tone was apologetic. "It does seem a poor return for your kindness. But I hadn't realized how late it was till you left and I looked at my watch. Then I simply had to get ready to go uptown. You see," she hurried on as he remained silent, "I'm due at East Seventieth street at two o'clock for my afternoon's work, and it's after that now, so I'm going to be late."

"You certainly are. Sit down."

The tone was one not often defied, but the girl defied it.

"Doctor," she cried, desperately, "it's my livelihood I'm talking about. Don't you understand? I work here in the mornings and in East Seventieth street in the afternoons, and I simply can't afford to lose either place."

"You'll lose them both if you don't cultivate some common sense," the young man grimly informed her. "Sit down, I tell you."

This time she obeyed, sinking rather limply to the side of the day bed, and his face softened.

"Don't think I don't understand," he went on more quietly, as he drew up a chair and sat down facing her. "But you're in no condition to go out alone. You might faint in the surface car or subway, whichever you use, and wake to find yourself in a hospital. Now I'll make a bargain with you," he added as she showed a disposition to interrupt. "Keep quiet a little longer, relax, and answer a few questions. Then, if you're really fit to go out, I'll take you to East Seventieth street in my car. I'm going uptown anyway. Is that agreed?"

"I—yes—thank you."

She closed her eyes. She did not like this imperious young man, but there was a relief in being definitely taken in hand when one felt so ill.

"Look at you," the doctor commented. "Blue around the lips, and with as much strength as a new born chicken has. Here, drink this clam broth."

She drank it.

"That's better. Now for our little talk. Steady, there. Don't get frightened or stubborn." He had seen her eyes widen and the line of her jaw harden as she set her teeth.

"I won't ask many questions," he went on, with a consideration unusual in him. "Here's the first: That sound through the telephone was one you recognized—wasn't it?"

"For a moment I imagined I did. That's what caused all the trouble."

The answer was so faint he had to lean forward to hear it, but the inquisition proceeded.

"Because you've heard the same thing before, through the telephone?"

"No, never through the telephone. I hear it a great deal in my sleep," she added, and then hesitated as if to choose her words with special care.

He was interested.

"What do you mean by that?"

"I have the same dream often—it's what you doctors call a 'recurrent dream'—and I hear a howl in the dream."

He saw that she was making an effort to speak casually, to make light of the dream, and to minimize the cause of her collapse.

"What's the dream about?"

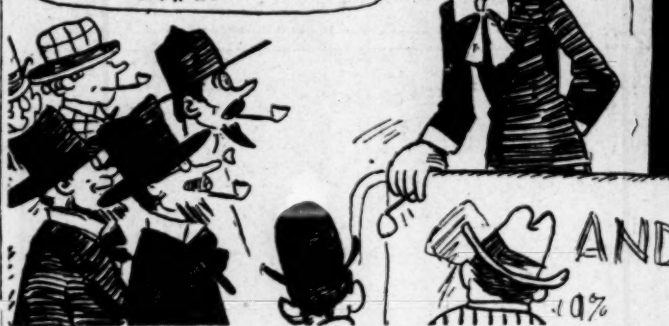

She tried to smile and answered almost glibly.

"A wolf. I hear the howl—in the dream. So today, when I heard a sound that was a little like a howl, it startled me horribly. Naturally it would. So you see, doctor, that explains the whole thing."

GENTLEMEN AND FELLOW TAXPAYERS—IN COMING TO ATLANTA I FEEL LIKE A SAILOR COMING HOME AFTER A LONG VOYAGE—THROUGH NO FAULT OF MINE I CONFESS I WAS NOT BORN IN THIS MARVELOUS CITY—BUT I AM PROUD TO SAY MY DEAR MOTHER'S PEOPLE WERE NATIVES OF THIS MAGNIFICENT CITY AND I LEARNED AS A BABY TO ATLANTA BEFORE I KNEW HOW TO SAY PAPA OR MAMA—

WITHOUT YOUR FAMOUS FIELDS OF COTTON WHERE WOULD THIS COUNTRY BE TO-DAY? WHERE WOULD OUR SILK SHIRTS AND ALL-WOOL OVERCOATS COME FROM WITHOUT THE COTTON BLOSSOMS OF THE SUNNY SOUTH? WHERE WOULD THE LINEN INDUSTRY BE? YOU NEED A MAN IN FAITHFULLY AS THAT GREAT SOUTHERN LEADER, ANDREW JACKSON, NEW ORLEANS, AND THAT MAN IS ANDREW GUMP—

I SURE AM PROUD TO MEET YOU, COLONEL, AND I WANT YOU TO COME TO WASHINGTON AS MY GUEST ON THE DAY I AM INAUGURATED—I FEEL THAT HAVING THE LOYAL SUPPORT OF ATLANTA MY SUCCESS IS ASSURED—FOR AS ATLANTA GOES SO GOES THE COUNTRY—

DOWN ON THE FARM.

(By E. E. Olmstead.)

Doggone it, Mr. Fun Shop Man, I'd like to see yuh stuffed with bran! My folks have got my farm in tangles because they're writin' jingle-jangles!

My daughter Sue is writin' verse. The hired girl is writin' worse; Instead of meetin' mortgage notes My son is writin' anikdotes.

No longer can I dream and smoke, I've got to listen to some joke Or bunch of bunk, a dingle-dangle—Ma tells me is a jingle-jangle.

But now we're quits: I heard 'em say "We'll send 'em in the mail today, And when yuh read the god darned mess Yuh'll go bughouse, if I've a guess."

The Reason.

Stranger: "What makes this town so quiet?"

Resident: "The big wind we had the other day. It blew down all the aeri-nals!" —G. T. Evans.

Pretty Thick.

Angie New: "It's getting harder to make up for my parts than it used to be."

Cora Fee: "Why so?"

Angie New: "One can't get enough on to look natural."

—H. R. Baukage.

"Try this on your piano," remarked Mrs. Burt: "What are you going to do with that musical daughter, handing her some piano polish."

Constellation. I stood on the bridge at midnight, Looking up at Mars. A jit came by and struck me, And I saw a million stars.

Something Useful—For Her.

Mrs. Burt: "What are you going to give your husband for his birthday, my dear?" Mrs. Hammons: "I haven't decided yet. Either a vacuum cleaner or that new electric oven I've always wanted." —Belle Dorothea Fein.

Accomplishment.

"Is your wife a good cook?"

"No, but she swings a mean can opener."

Made of Finer Clay.

Susie Hess Orr, known as Sis Orr, Told Assessor S. R. Messer, Of her Charles-the-Second saucer. Sis Orr was the "proud possessor" Of this saucer, Heaven bless her.

S. R. Messer was no guesser, And no porcelain professor: How could he assess her saucer? So, when R. R., the assessor, Tried to "sass" her 'bout her saucer, Sis Orr said to S. R.: "Cease, or I will yell for the police, Sir!" Then, when Messer tried to kiss her, Yes sir, Sis Orr broke the saucer On Assessor Messer's jaw, Sir! —C. L. Edson.

Not Popular Now.

Alice: "I wish I could show you Jack's love letters."

Annabelle: "Thanks, I don't care for summer fiction."

—Bernice Phillips.

Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary. Little Mary and her cousin James were playing when the following was overheard:

Mary: "James, when I get grown I'm going to marry you."

James: "No, you're not, I'm going to marry Susie Dean."

Mary: "Yes, but I will."

James: "No, but you shan't."

Mary: "But I tell you I will marry you."

James: "Well, if you do, I won't come to the wedding."

—Josephine Pearce.

In For It.

What his wife knows of courts is nil; Her legal talent's very slim. Yet she displays the greatest skill In laying down the law to him.

—J. S. Culbreth.

Proper Place. Madge: "What was that you said to the football player?"

Marjorie: "I wished him luck and hoped he would always come out on top."

—H. N. Rahaley.

Catastrophe.

Sometimes a woman suffers so, it is a miracle that there's anything left of her at all.

Her heart is rent, her spirit is broken, her pride is wounded and her nerves are torn.

Her hands are tied, her nose is turned up and her tears drop down. Her hopes are shattered, her ambition is crushed, her chances are killed, and her language is murdered. Isn't it terrible?

Indispensable.

Stockholder: "I don't see why our corporation needs six vice presidents."

What do they do?"

Director: "They take turns sitting in for the president when he is playing golf."

—H. V. Gunderson.

The Humorous Boarder.

After a fruitless day on the lake, the boarder who always tried to be clever came up to the landlord standing on the landing.

"What's the difference between you and a bass?"

"What is it? I'll bite."

"That's the difference. The bass wouldn't."

CLARENCE WHITEHILL, noted American baritone, was asked the other day how he discovered his singing voice, and the Musical Digest quotes him as answering: "Calling cows in a forty-acre lot instead of going after them."

Now, if we were asked our opinion, in the current discussion as to what good came out of the world war, we should tell that story.

Nothing could illustrate more clearly the war-born change in the American viewpoint towards art, and the artist and the derivation of each.

Clarence Whitehill, while he might have thought before the war that this story quotes him as saying, and while he may at heart be the most democratic American of us all, would never have cared to have come out of the pose then demanded of the artist by the American public, and to be so plainly a mere human like the rest of us.

Dr. Harvey W. Cox
Fetes New Members
Of Emory Faculty

Emory University, Ga., September 28.—(Special.)—Members of the Emory faculty and their wives were entertained Friday at a reception given by President and Mrs. Harvey W. Cox at their home on the campus, the affair being in compliment to new members of the faculty.

The house was beautifully decorated with dahlias from the garden of the hostess, carrying out the respective color schemes of the different rooms. The color theme of the living room was red, with dahlias to match; that of the hall was lavender, with millonaria dahlias, while the predominating tone of the dining room was yellow, with a silver vase of orange dahlias on the tea table.

The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Goodrich White, Mrs. W. S. Nelms, Mrs. Alice Turner, Mrs. Clifford Thompson, Mrs. Douglas Rumble and Mrs. F. N. Parker.

An enjoyable feature of the occasion was the singing of John Knox, former president of the Emory Glee club, who rendered "I Love You Truly."

New members of the faculty, who were honored by this reception, are Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Woodward, Captain and Mrs. T. S. Arnold, Dr. R. H. Oppenheimer, Professor and Mrs. H. M. McCormack, Professor H. W. Caldwell, Dr. and Mrs. R. O. Quale, Professor James W. Martin, Professor Gordon Watson, Professor E. C. Colwell, Professor R. T. Purnell, Professor P. W. Edsell, Professor J. P. Day and Professor Mercer Evans.

AN UGLY NOSE.

For the next week or so let us take the face, feature by feature, and see what can be done to improve each special part. Suppose we begin with the nose, one of the most prominent features and one hardest to alter if it is ugly.

The most fortunate thing about the nose is that any little thing about it makes a decided improvement. It is good thing to practice if they are too thin. Breathe in hard, as though you were sniffing a pleasant odor, and you can feel the nostrils expand (horses do it); it will widen the nostrils, and the nostrils will be hidden if pimpled, blackheads and such things deface it.

If your nose is really deformed, plastic surgery can better its shape. But you can do a little, quite a little, toward reducing a bump by pressing on it with the fingers for a minute or two several times a day. Can you make your nostrils tense as they are too thin. ## The Constitution's Patterns

A POPULAR STYLE FOR A MASQUERADE SUIT.

4900. This model may be developed in flannel, cambric or jersey cloth. The coat is separate, and is joined to the hood at the neck. This is a very popular costume for children's theatricals, fancy dress parties and masquerades.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 10-year size requires 5 yards of 27-inch material. If upper flounce is omitted, 1-2 yard less is required. The hat alone requires 1-2 yard.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A PRACTICAL PLAY SUIT. 4242. Here is a new and pleasing version of the romper style, with out-standing pocket sections, and comfortable sleeve. Chambray, gingham, khaki, linen and cretonne are good for this design.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. A 4-year size requires 2-1/8 yards of 36-inch material. To trim as illustrated will require 3-8 yard of 36-inch contrasting material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

WORSHIPS AN IDEAL.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17 years old. Three years ago I met a young man who was a year my senior. His gentlemanly manner won my admiration and this admiration has long since grown into a very deep love. It is not the love of one who is in love with love, but who loves an ideal. I am young, but I want to win his love during my remaining school years. He escorted me home late from an entertainment but has shown no further inclination of wanting to go with me. He has escorted other girls to parties at school, but has never asked me. Other boys have asked me, but none of them has come to the standard which I think he ought to. I want to be fair to my ideal and I am saving all my dates for him. I think I am really too young yet, but if he asked me I would go. Do you think I am doing right? I could not do anything to hurt him and I would do anything for him. My very intimate friends tell me he is indifferent toward me and say I should make him think I don't care for him, but I don't see how I can for I am sure he already knows. Some of the girls call him "sissified" because he is a gentleman and I won't stand for it, and tell them so. Some one must have told him by now that I always "stick up" for him. I want his love more than anything else in the world and I will be very grateful for your advice.

My dear, to worship an ideal, as you are doing, is to be in love with love. You have made a picture in your own mind of the young man as you think he is, but in reality he would prove quite different. If you knew him better you would not find your idol faultless and you would soon discover that many of the virtues you picture him to have are things of your imagination. You are going at the matter in the wrong way if you want him to care for you. You must absolutely stop talking about him because your adoration will disgust instead of win him. If he thinks you have outgrown your infatuation there is far more chance that he will be interested in you and try to revive your feeling. Let people say what they want to, and do not be his companion. They are only trying to tease you. I would also advise you to go with other boys who invite you. If he thinks you are fascinating to other boys there is more chance that he will admire you. Above everything, remember to keep your love to yourself. Make it a rule not to mention him to any one.

Disgrace. It is no more disgrace for a woman to have short hair than a man. If your parents refuse to see the situation in that light, however, there is little you can do about the matter. You are suffering unnecessarily, however, because there is no disgrace in having long hair. So many girls have bobbed hair these days that those with long hair have a right to feel exclusive. It is most unkind of the boys and girls to tease you and I doubt if they would if they realized how it makes you suffer. Don't let your unhappiness stand in the way of a good education, because when you are older you can use your own judgment and have your hair bobbed if you want to. I think it would relieve your feelings somewhat if you told your school teacher what you have told me. Her sympathy might help you to bear the teasing. Personally I think it is a shame that your parents should let their prejudice against bobbed hair stand in the way of your happiness.

A Soiled Clothesline. Wrap the soiled clothesline around the washboard and scrub with soap-suds and a scrubbing brush. Place under the spigot to rinse well and dry in the sun.

PUZZLED PATSY. My dear, to worship an ideal, as you are doing, is to be in love with love. TODAY'S RECIPES.
Creamed Beef and Eggs—Take one pint of white sauce, one-fourth pound dried beef, three hard-boiled eggs. Chop the eggs and beef in a food chopper until fine. Add to the white sauce and cook for about one minute. Pour over buttered slices of toast.
Combination Sandwich—Take one lettuce leaf, one very thin slice of fried ham, one fried egg (yolk broken), one thin slice of tomato, chopped onion. Place the ingredients between two slices of buttered bread. Cut in half. Serve immediately.

Stuffed Peppers—Remove seeds from six large, green peppers. Mix one and a half pounds of sausage with one Emory chopped onion. Stuff the peppers and bake in moderate oven for about 45 minutes.

Strawberry Tart—Make tarts of piecrust in muffin pans. Fill with strawberry preserves and garnish with beaten cream.

Cottage Cheese Salad—Take one pint of cottage cheese, one small head of lettuce (shredded), one onion cut up fine, one pepper, cut up fine, cucumber cut up fine. Mix the ingredients together. Add salad dressing and seasoning to taste.

NATURAL MEDICINE.
Juicy fruits are the best and most wholesome of the raw foods. They provide little in the way of starch, fat or protein. Their content of organic mineral salts is so large, however, that we may justly call them nature's perfect pills.

SUGGESTIONS FOR YOUR FLOWER GARDEN.
Forget-me-nots are very readily grown from seeds which can be sown now. If you have plants in your garden that have gone to seed, cut off the tops and shake them over the beds, allowing the seeds to fall where they will. If you buy seeds, you will find it wiser, perhaps, to start them in a cold frame or a sheltered corner of the garden. If you use a frame and cover it with glass in the winter you have very early plants in the spring.

The chimney bellflower is a lovely garden plant, but it is not grown very commonly because it requires two years to produce blooms when grown from seed. Amateurs can get much quicker results by buying one or two started plants, cutting off the roots and planting these roots in the garden, at least a foot apart. Each root will make a new plant which will bloom the next season. The chimney bellflower when well grown becomes six or eight feet high and has lovely bell-shaped blue and white blossoms.

A Soiled Clothesline. Wrap the soiled clothesline around the washboard and scrub with soap-suds and a scrubbing brush. Place under the spigot to rinse well and dry in the sun.

PUZZLED PATSY. My dear, to worship an ideal, as you are doing, is to be in love with love. You have made a picture in your own mind of the young man as you think he is, but in reality he would prove quite different. If you knew him better you would not find your idol faultless and you would soon discover that many of the virtues you picture him to have are things of your imagination. You are going at the matter in the wrong way if you want him to care for you. You must absolutely stop talking about him because your adoration will disgust instead of win him. If he thinks you have outgrown your infatuation there is far more chance that he will be interested in you and try to revive your feeling. Let people say what they want to, and do not be his companion. They are only trying to tease you. I would also advise you to go with other boys who invite you. If he thinks you are fascinating to other boys there is more chance that he will admire you. Above everything, remember to keep your love to yourself. Make it a rule not to mention him to any one.

Disgrace. It is no more disgrace for a woman to have short hair than a man. If your parents refuse to see the situation in that light, however, there is little you can do about the matter. You are suffering unnecessarily, however, because there is no disgrace in having long hair. So many girls have bobbed hair these days that those with long hair have a right to feel exclusive. It is most unkind of the boys and girls to tease you and I doubt if they would if they realized how it makes you suffer. Don't let your unhappiness stand in the way of a good education, because when you are older you can use your own judgment and have your hair bobbed if you want to. I think it would relieve your feelings somewhat if you told your school teacher what you have told me. Her sympathy might help you to bear the teasing. Personally I think it is a shame that your parents should let their prejudice against bobbed hair stand in the way of your happiness.

XXXVII—HATE'S WEAPONS.

When Mary stepped onto the train that would take her to Vancouver she felt as if she had begun life anew. It would be some time before Nigel could get a divorce from her, she reflected; perhaps she had been too hasty in wiring Bruce, realizing that to live as she did in thoughts of the time when they could be together, she felt that she had done the right thing in telegraphing him at once.

It was a new thing to her

Atlanta Firm Is Awarded Large Contract in Tampa

Burford, Hall & Smith, sales engineers and contractors, with offices in the Red Rock building, were recently awarded a contract amounting to $178,000 for construction of a complete new water works pumping plant for the city of Tampa, Fla. With the recent growth of this Florida city, it became necessary to augment the existing water supply, which is derived from artesian wells, and this necessitated providing a new supply from a nearby river. The building of a complete new pumping plant was required, which contract was awarded to Burford, Hall & Smith.

This new station will have four large De Laval centrifugal pumping units, driven by De Laval geared steam turbines, a type similar to the large De Laval pumps recently installed by this firm for the city of Atlanta. Another large contract recently executed by this firm is the installation of three 30,000,000 gallon daily capacity De Laval centrifugal pumps in the pumping stations of the city of Atlanta. Atlanta now has five of these pumping units in daily use, representing a combined capacity of 150,000,000 gallons daily.

Burford, Hall & Smith have also recently completed installation of pumping machinery in the cities of Columbus and Macon, Jacksonville, Florida, Miami Beach, Fla., and other southern cities. They are specialists in installation of modern high efficiency pumping and steam power plants, and have executed a number of important contracts in the southern territory.

This firm is composed of R. A. Burford, Jr., Roland B. Hall and Samuel H. Smith, all of whom have had many years' experience in constructing engineering in the power plant field.

Modern Machinery Suggests The Romance of the Woods

In these prosaic times one generally goes to the movies when in the mood for a touch of romance. Yet the romance all about us, even in the most unlooked-for places, can not be doubted if one were to stroll through the display areas of the American Machinery company, whose salesrooms and offices are located at 97 South Forsyth street, Atlanta.

The American Machinery company is one of the largest and most progressive distributors of saw-mill and wood-working machinery in the southeast. It was the original plan of the founders to ultimately render the saw-mill and woodworking interests of this territory a complete service in every detail of the process of turning the forests of the fields into the products that add to the material comforts of the home and the increased efficiency of the office and factory building. Letting one's imagination play a little, you can hear the crash and swish of the big tree as it breaks its way to the ground as you glance at case upon case of cross-cut saws of all sizes that will soon be serving their purpose in the growing timber. There are the skidders and log chains and other logging tools that will drag or haul the fallen timber to its place at the mill. You can hear the singing of the big saw in the log and the singing of the log turners as you glance at the saw-mill waiting its turn to do heavy service in the woods. You can be closing your eyes for a moment smell the equipment is steadily increasing, and we are doing our best to merit the confidence of our customers by continually striving to better American service.

"As our salesrooms are but two blocks from the terminal station, we wish to extend a very cordial invitation to all visitors to the big South-eastern fair to be held at Lakewood October 4 to 11 to visit our salesrooms while they are in Atlanta."

Good Workmanship and Good Material Secures Results

When a big firm or corporation wants some real fine wood work in interior finishing, whether it be wood, marble or bronze for the bank, store, dwelling, apartment house or office building, it immediately gets in touch with the Krueger Manufacturing company, 61 Lakewood avenue.

For here is a big firm equipped with the best of facilities and having a large number of expert workmen to turn out and install the very finest work in their line. They have been doing the same for the past 15 years and their fine work stands as a monument in stores and in many of the best buildings in all parts of the south.

Take the new 17-story Woodside building just recently completed in Greenville, S. C. This is the finest building in South Carolina and is considered to be one of the finest office and bank buildings on the American continent. The Krueger Manufacturing company furnished the entire building from cellar to roof garden with the interior wood and marble finishing.

The Woodside National bank occupies the first two floors, and no more commodious quarters are anywhere to be found in the entire south. The directors' room will seat 200 people, and the president's office is solidly paneled in carefully-matched mahogany.

The lobby of the bank is a masterpiece of architecture with its massive columns of Italian marble supporting a high vaulting ceiling in whose curving center is a beautiful skylight if imported glass. A grand stairway of marble leads to the handsome mezzanine floor which surrounds the lobby, and an ornamental grille of heavy bronze separates the burglar-proof vaults from the main banking room.

The Krueger Manufacturing company has been installing the many beautiful stores that have been established by the Nunnally Candy company the past few years, and these ready stores are recognized as models of their kind.

All the beautiful woodwork in the George Muehle building came from the Krueger Manufacturing company's plant, as is the case with a number of beauty parlors of Atlanta. Those on the fourth floor of the Rich store are unusually handsome.

The Krueger Manufacturing company bank at the corner of Lee and Gordon streets is another triumph of interior bank fixture work of marble, bronze and glass, and this busy firm is now putting in a new store front for the Keely company on the Hunter street side that will be a great improvement to the Keely company and to Hunter street. This work is now going on, and when completed, it will stand as another reason why the Krueger Manufacturing company gets so many of the big contracts in its line.

Service Beyond the Contract Is Atlanta Firms' Success

In the present day we see service being extended to a much greater extent than it has ever been before, men and firms are now days making a careful study of their own lines and have seen where they can extend their business by rendering extra service that their predecessors in the same lines would have thought was a waste of time and money.

Atlanta has in the Joseph S. Shaw firm an organization of construction engineers that furnishes a service from the purchase of the lot to the planting of the lawn. This concern maintains a complete organization of specialists in architectural and structural work and places at their clients' disposal an opportunity to get all the advice and financial assistance in the developing of any building project for the one small fee.

This firm has built some beautiful apartment houses in Atlanta among them are the L'Aiglon, 681 Peachtree street; the Piedmont, 908 Piedmont street; the Colburnia, Moreland and McLenon avenues; apartment at 61 16th street east; Jacksonia, 300 Jackson street; apartment at 91 East 14th street; the Maribet, 618 North Boulevard, and many others.

Eight of those beautiful new homes you see at the entrance of the new Morningside subdivision were built by this busy firm and the reputation of the Joseph S. Shaw Construction Engineers has gone out of Georgia and they have just recently been awarded the contract for a half-million dollar hotel at Daytona, Fla., and have also the contract for a big handsome apartment at Savannah, Ga.

The keynote of this firm's success is service and the completion of a building does not mean the cessation of interest, consequently this firm can always do the second job for any one of their many clients and doors of their office in the Georgia Trust building are always open to old clients and new customers where sketches may be seen, advice given and estimates furnished without any obligation being incurred.

WALLACE DEFENDS FIRING OF CLERK

Washington, September 28.—Dismissal of John M. Burns, a law clerk of the department of agriculture, was defended by Secretary Wallace in a letter made public today in which he told Benjamin C. Marsh, managing director of the Farmers' National council, that his recent letter asking President Coolidge to investigate the action was "simply one more evidence of your malicious efforts to hamper and discredit the department of agriculture."

Replying at the request of the president, Secretary Wallace said Mr. Marsh's letter to the president carried the impression "that you are authorized to speak for a considerable and responsible group of farmers."

"I know very well that you are not," he continued. "You do not represent farm sentiment. You are not working in the interests of farmers, but on the contrary are, and for years have been, doing the cause of agriculture great harm."

Answers Under Orders.

"I answer your letter only because it was sent to me to be answered. I know that neither you nor your letters are entitled to any attention or consideration whatsoever from anyone in a position of responsibility."

Marsh's letter to the president described the dismissal of Burns, after he had testified before a house committee last May, as "one of the most underhanded and sneaking cases of official terrorism in our country's history."

Mr. Wallace said the Burns case, on the contrary, was handled with far greater consideration than Burns had any right to expect, and that Burns, himself, had expressed appreciation of the consideration shown him.

Burns Was Told.

"Burns' charges against the administrative officers of the pickers and stockyards administration made before the congressional committee were thoroughly exploded and refuted, not only by representatives of this department, but by voluntary witnesses," wrote Mr. Wallace. "The hearings of the committee had continued but a few days when it became evident that they had been instituted as a result of your misrepresentation and deception for purely political purposes, and that there was no foundation for the charges made against the officers of this department."

Mr. Wallace declared there was not a word of truth in the statement that Mr. Marsh's letter to the president that the secretary appeared before the house committee on agriculture and attempted to blacken the character of Burns.

"I have a good deal of sympathy for Burns, who seems unable to resist the malign influences of persons like yourself, and consequently becomes a victim of your evil machinations," wrote Mr. Wallace.

The Mexican National Railway recently bought 50 locomotives, 1,000 narrow and 500 standard-gauge cars from an American manufacturer.

LA FOLLETTE GAINS WORRY G.O.P. HEADS

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, September 28.—Some republicans are going through a period of psychological depression due to gains which La Follette is thought to be making, but the more far-seeing men in the Coolidge organization expect to profit in the end by this situation. Polls, confidential reports, and observations of republican politicians passing through Washington all agree that La Follette has developed strength rapidly in the past few weeks. Some say he has passed the crest and is slipping under the attacks Coolidge is making at almost weekly intervals now, as in his Baltimore and Philadelphia speeches.

But other republicans refuse to underestimate La Follette, though they are not at all worried over the situation. They believe that if the country really feels that the election will be thrown into congress, there will be a rush to President Coolidge that will put him over with a bigger majority than Harding got.

Worries State Leaders.

La Follette's strength is worrying republicans in California, Missouri and Michigan, for instance. In all of these states, there is a large independent vote which comes from the business and professional classes who want more than anything else good times. These voters are not tied to any party. They will in the opinion of many republican leaders, rush over to Coolidge to make sure of a decision at the polls.

But this safety first vote is apt to work for Davis rather than Coolidge, according to the democratic angle. The democrats argue that Davis starts with 130,000 southern votes, that with Al Smith running on the democratic ticket again in New York, Coolidge will have less chance of carrying the state, and that to put Coolidge in the white house with a hostile congress would create a legislative deadlock such as was witnessed last winter. They say Davis could cooperate with the La Follette bloc, which now holds the balance of power and which they believe will continue to hold it in the next congress. A vote for Coolidge, they argue, is a vote for a deadlock between the white house and congress.

Good Guessing Material.

It is a situation that lends itself to all sorts of intricate arguments all built around the safety first vote. Because of the large number of independent voters, it will be difficult to determine in advance whether Coolidge or Davis will get the bulk of the safety first ballots. But this much seems certain: any votes are going to be frightened away from La Follette in this manner. His followers are opposed to both Coolidge and Davis. They want a new deal in politics. La Follette appears to them the best medium of obtaining it. Even if he cannot be elected, they believe the alternative of a decision in con-press might be better than election of one of the old parties' presidential candidates. So they are only made firmer in their allegiance by the attempt to scare them over the prospect of a congressional tieup. They are rather flattered that their candidate has been able to stir up such a commotion.

HOMELESS DUCHESS WILL ASK LAWYER TO SOLVE PLIGHT

London, September 28.—Homeless and confessing she hadn't the slightest idea of where she was going or how she was going to relieve her plight, the Duchess of Westminster returned to England from the United States today aboard the Homeric.

The duchess is suing the Duke of Westminster, one of the richest peers in England, for divorce. As a sort of counter-attack, the duke recently ousted her from the duke home here and posted guards to prevent her from gaining entrance.

"Although I am a duchess, I am homeless," her grace sighed when she landed at Southampton. "I don't suppose any other passenger on the Homeric is in such a plight. I do not know where to go or what to do until I see my lawyer."

MEXICO RESTRICTS RUSH TO YUCATAN BY FEDERAL ORDER

Mexico City, September 28.—The rush of American women and girls to the world's new divorce capital in Yucatan has caused such proportions that the Mexican government has taken action.

The minister of the interior has moved to restrict the flood of pilgrimages, following a wire from immigration authorities at Progreso, Yucatan, declaring that among contingents of American women continue to arrive, some seeking divorces and others merely diversion.

The pleasure-seekers, the Progresso authorities declare, are behaving in an "unfeminine manner."

The minister of the interior has now instructed them not to admit any more women unless they can satisfy the Progresso officials that they are there for good reason, or can furnish written permits from husbands or guardians to travel to Yucatan. Failing this, they must return on the same boat.

Countess Salm Becomes Mother Of 7-Pound Boy

Former Millicent Rogers, Heiress to $400,000, Reported as "Doing Well."

New York, September 28.—Countess Ludwig Salm-Von Hoozstraten, formerly Miss Millicent Rogers, today was reported as doing well following the birth of a son in a private hospital yesterday afternoon. It was announced that the boy weighed seven pounds at birth.

Count Salm-Von Hoozstraten, to whom Miss Rogers was married last January 8, now is in Europe. He has been estranged from his wife since last May, four months after they were married against the wishes of Miss Rogers' parents, Colonel and Mrs. Henry H. Rogers. Countess Salm-Von Hoozstraten is the heiress to a sum estimated at $400,000, left her by her grandfather, the late H. H. Rogers, oil magnate.

After the marriage the countess went abroad with her husband. In April her father sailed for Europe and she returned to this country, her husband going to Vienna, where he is head of the Austrian house bearing his name. He was said to have been virtually penniless at the time of his marriage. Colonel and Mrs. Rogers were present at the birth of their daughter's son.

JAPAN STUDYING CO-OP MARKETING OF TOBACCO CROP

Washington, September 28.—Japan is studying American methods of tobacco marketing and tobacco growers' cooperative organizations. If Yamashita, commissioner of the Japanese government tobacco monopoly, is making a tour of southern producing regions, it was announced today by the department of agriculture, which is assisting the study.

Apparatus for shooting to ships in distress a hose through which oil may be pumped on the troubled waters, has been invented.

WRECKAGE SHOWS FATE OF STEAMER

Part of Pilot House of Clifton Found in Lake Disperses All Doubt of Whaleback's Loss.

Cleveland, September 28.—A ray doubt of the sinking of the whaleback freighter Clifton, with her crew of 28, was dispelled with the finding in Lake Huron of hatch covers and the forward end of a pilot house.

No bodies were found. Captain Dalton Hudson, of the steamer Glenclair, of the Great Lakes Transportation company, reported to A. E. R. Schneider, general manager of the Progress Steamship company, owners of the Clifton, late today that he encountered the wreckage yesterday about seven miles from Goderich, O., the detour Goderich course. The wreckage described was identified by Mr. Schneider as that of the Clifton.

The wreckage consisted of broken hatch covers, the message said. "In hopes of finding something that could be identified as belonging to some particular vessel, we cruised around for about two hours. Finally picked up forward end of a pilot house. The pilot house clock and searchlight were attached."

The clock registered 4 o'clock. Captain Hudson told Mr. Schneider over the long-distance telephone from Goderich, Ontario, but whether the boat sank Sunday afternoon or Monday morning, is not known. She was last seen passing Mackinac at 10:20 a. m. last Sunday, en route from Sturgeon Bay to Detroit, laden with stone. Captain Hudson was upward bound on Lake Huron last Monday. A gale was blowing from the westward when he passed Harbor Beach at 4 a. m. and was at its height between 4 and 5 o'clock.

A SMALL ESTATE ON PAGE'S FERRY ROAD

We have the satisfaction of being able to offer that little gem of a country home situated on Pace's Ferry Road adjoining the Conkey Whitehead estate; this place has a frontage of 250 ft., running back 600 ft., contains about four acres, with a small house.

However, the house is not in keeping with the surrounding homes, which are among the finest that can be found in the southern states; we have a price of $23,000; the house is now vacant and we will be pleased to make appointment to show it to anyone interested. It belongs in the class of property which simply cannot be duplicated.

Georgia Autoist Burned To Death Under Own Car

Norris Smith, Prominent Roman, Entrapped Working on His Machine.

Rome, Ga., September 28.—(Special.)—Norris M. Smith, 47, prominent Rome real estate and insurance man, was burned to death beneath his own automobile here tonight when gasoline dripping from the carburetor was ignited from the spark of the machine as he worked to stop the leak. In an effort to extricate himself from the flames, he kicked over a bucket of gasoline, and was enveloped in fire instantly. The accident occurred in front of his home.

His wife, formerly Miss Eugenia Wales, of Selma, Ala., rushed to his rescue, but he was fatally burned and died at a local hospital shortly after reaching there. Officers said he might have been saved if he had not been trapped beneath the car so that assistance could not reach him.

Mr. Smith is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mable Horn, and two brothers, William and Holmes Smith, of Atlanta; another brother, Julian, of Birmingham, and two aunts, Mrs. Julia Champion and Mrs. Josie Smith, both of Savannah.
